EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Senator from Missouri, Mr. Vest, has been ordered to take a rest.

RHODE ISLAND now has a Democratic Governor—the first in many years.

SENATOR BETTS is willing to serve his State without pay to pass a revenue bill.

A SCHEME is on foot in Philadelphia to build forty miles of elevated railroad.

THERE has been a discovery of efforts to "fix" the jury in the case against Sharp in New York city.

THE aldermen of Brooklyn have appointed fifteen women as police matrons, with salaries of $600 each.

LEONARD RHONE announces his willingness to go to Harrisburg and help pass a revenue bill without extra pay.

THE Philadelphia Times is booming a big Fourth of July celebration in that city with all the vigor of a rural weekly newspaper.

Now, if George Handy Smith were more handy in signing bills he would make a better legislator. As it is, he will make a better smith.

THE high railroad rates are distressing to circus men. They are compelled to pay the uniform price for passage of three cents per mile for each performer.

"CHRIS." MAGEE has announced that Blaine can have a solid Pennsylvania delegation in 1888 if he desires it. The Pittsburg boss also declares that the Republicans will win in 1888.

HENRY BROCKERHOFF, of this place, and William Wolf, of Philipsburg, attended the meeting of the Millers' Association of Central Pennsylvania at the Ward House in Tyrone on Monday.

WILLIAM A. WHEELER, ex-Vice President of the United States, who died on Saturday, was distinguished alike for his political abilities, and services, and for the unquestioned purity of his character.

GOV. BEAVER is right in his determination not to call the legislature. And it will be proper for him to cut off all needless appropriations. That is the economical and sensible way out of the dilemma.

THE Cunard steamer "Umbria," from Queenstown to New York, last week made the shortest trip on record. The time occupied was 6 days, 4 hours and 12 minutes. The name of the captain is McMicken.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GARLAND would have the country believe that he is anxious to get to private life again. If he is in earnest in this desire he may rest assured that the country is just as anxious as he is that he should retire.

A VOTE by telegraph is being taken among the members of the Legislature to ascertain how many of them are willing to attend an extra session to consider the revenue bill without asking pay. This will test the patriotism of the State's law makers.

BLAINE departs to-day from New York city on his tour across the Atlantic and through Europe. His trip is solely one of pleasure. He will be accompanied by his family. We are quite sure that an admiring people will unite in wishing him a delightful trip and a safe return.

EX SECRETARY CHANDLER is not going to have an easy road to the United States Senate from New Hampshire. Gen. Gilman Marston, a Republican of prominence and influence, has come into the field, with the prospect of a formidable bolt if he fails to secure the nomination, which is likely to go to Chandler.

DURING the time President Cleveland was exploring Saranac lake and the woods in the vicinity he saw a bear. The experienced hunter with Mr. Cleveland begged that dignitary merely to watch the bear until he could procure a gun, but the President did not care to be hugged by His Bearship and begged to be excused, pleading as an excuse that it was illegal to kill bear at the time.

What Shall be Done?

The prospects of the revenues of this State have undergone a change and material reduction during the past week. Gov. Beaver was preparing the new revenue bill for his signature when he discovered that it lacked an essential requisite—the signature of George Handy Smith, the President of the Senate.

This bill increased the revenues of the State $2,000,000 and its failure enforces the most rigid economy. We consider it a decidedly faulty provision of the Constitution which requires this or any other bill to be signed in open session. By all means, the proper officer should be permitted to do so simple an act as to put his signature to a bill at any time. The constitution should be altered in this respect, as it enables one man to defeat the will of the entire legislature. The act is a merely clerical one, and should not be hedged in by by such an accumulation of form and fuss. In fact, there is too much red tape about it.

But that is not the question. The fact is, that the bill has failed. There are two ways out of the dilemma and one is to call an extra session but Gov. Beaver is opposed to such a resort. We sympathise with him in his opposition to an extra session, and hope he will not call one. It would entail an expense of from $150,000 to $200,000 on the State, and then there is no certainty that the result would be such a satisfactory bill. The Governor, it is said, cannot reconvene the legislature for the sole purpose of having the bill signed, but only for the general purpose of considering financial legislation. Again, the gentleman of the legislature should have patriotism enough to meet, without pay, to pass such a bill; but it is well known that legislators don't always do as they should, and patriotism is something they possess only when a Memorial day or Fourth of July oration is to be delivered. They would be very glad to respond to Governor Beaver's invitation to reconvene, and would cap the climax of gross error by voting themselves a big salary. So, let them remain at home.

Meanwhile, Governor Beaver will see that expenses are kept within proper bounds. He has been compelled to veto several appropriations, among them that giving $600,000 to patch up the State Capitol building. The Governor seemed to regret the necessity of doing this, but it strikes us as quite a capital (no pun intended) result of this mistake. The $600,000 appropriation was itself a mistake, and if a second mistake can remedy the first no one need mourn.

Crazy on one Subject.

We pity many of the real radical Democrats. Some of them are very pleasant and agreeable men, but on one subject they are among the most deluded of mortals. It is truly deplorable when otherwise really excellent men fail sadly in one point. There must have been something in the air or in the appearance of the moon about the time ex-President Rutherford Hayes, of Ohio, was elected that exerted a queer influence on these men. They conceived the idea that something was wrong and have adhered to the delusion ever since. Such gentlemen as Editor Dana, of the New York Sun, Editor Meek of the Watchman, and Editor Furey, of the Lock Haven Democrat, are among these individuals who are deluded in regard to one political fact. There was never a fairer or more certain election than that which made Mr. Hayes President and Mr. Wheeler Vice President, but these gentlemen will not give up the peculiar idea that there was something unfair in it. They repeatedly refer to this and were it the only subject they discussed their pecularity would be sufficient to send them to an insane asylum, but fortunately on all other subjects they are lucid and sane.

Only a few days ago the Lock Haven Democrat spoke of the dying ex-Vice President Wheeler in terms which would have seemed harsh and cruel were it not for the well-known fact that the editor is one of poor mortals whose mind on this one subject is not evenly balanced.

THERE is considerable shaking up going on in old Kentucky, among the politicians. Many men, hitherto identified with the Democratic party are taking independent action, some going to the Prohibitionists and others boldly announcing their intention of voting the Republican ticket. This break began last fall when Carlisle was so nearly defeated and is said to continue. Republican Candidate Bradley hopes that his party will poll 140,000 votes at the gubernatorial election in August in Kentucky, and if it does he will probably be the next governor of the state. The election takes place in August next and there will be one of the most vigorous campaigns Kentucky has seen in a long time.

To the West and the South.

President Cleveland does not despise precedent. Some men have traveled with the hope of helping their candidacy for President, and have been defeated. Others have traveled with successful results. Anyway, there is a strong conviction prevalent that it is really helpful to go around and act the part of an elephant in the menagerie and the President is making arrangements to do. The reports tell us that he will start next August for a grand tour west. He will go direct to St. Louis. Thence he will go to the Pacific coast and afterwards spend ten days in a tour of the National Park. He will exhibit himself to all the citizens of the West, not excepting the Indian, and he believes that a visit from the Great Mogul, of Washington will have a good effect on the Red Men.

Apprehensive that a tour west will aggravate the people of the South, whom he has several times refused to visit, he will return through the southern states. He is encouraged in taking this trip by Mrs. Cleveland and he believes that with her at his side he will make a good impression. The trip will cost him $3500, but he believes it will be money well spent if it will help him to another four-year term and its $200,000 salary

The Truth, Anyway.

The New York Tribune believes that the Democrats and Mugwumps will not be able to extract much comfort from Senator Sherman's Springfield speech. What he said some time ago in Nashville has been variously twisted about in Democratic organs to make it appear that he has revised his opinions concerning Southern election methods. He said last Thursday: "There is not an intelligent man in this broad land of either party who does not know that Mr. Cleveland is now President of the United States by virtue of crimes against the elective franchise, including murder, arson, ballot-box stuffing, forgery and perjury, but for which James G. Blaine would now be in his place.

And Mr. Sherman followed this up by showing that by means of a majority in in the House obtained in the same way the Democrats struggle to break down the industrial system of the country, to put obstacles in the way of the extension of its foreign commerce and to do many other injurious things. These are undeniable facts.

IN the opinion of the Harrisburg Telegraph, "the Memphis militia that dropped out of line in Washington because they would not be 'put on a level with niggers,' happily avoided that danger. They were not. The 'niggers' not only excelled them in marching and in military drill, but also in all the qualities that constitute real gentlemen. While the colored militia behaved admirably and with becoming regard for their official character, the Memphis and Vicksburg men behaved in a rude, ill-bred manner, showing them to be not only silly, but also very ignorant of the progress of the times.

ALL of the three per cent. government bonds have been called in. The principal and interest of these bonds become due under the call July 1, 1887, and interest will cease from that date. These are not only the last of all the three per cents., but the last of all the bonds of the United States, subject to payment at par at the discretion of the government. Secretary Manning, in his last annual report, predicted that these bonds would be paid by October of the present year. The government revenues have exceeded his expectations and his prophesy is anticipated by three months.

JUDGE BARRETT is giving New York business men a strong reminder that when the Court sends for them it is not a mere request, but a mandate. Jury service is one of the most important duties of citizenship, and Judges are frequently too lenient in insisting upon its due performance by the most capable classes.

Death of a Distinguished Jurist.

The death of Chief Justice Mercur occurred last Saturday and the particulars of his illness and death have already been given. His death was the result of an illness from which it was hoped he would recover. This event removes one of the brightest minds in the State.

Ulysses Mercur was born in Towanda Pa., in 1815 During his boyhood he labored during the summer on his father's farm near that town and attended common schools in the winter. At the age of sixteen he entered the store of his elder brothers as a clerk, where he remained for three years. He always had a great desire to acquire a liberal education. His father's means did not justify him in providing the money necessary for that purpose; but he had a small farm which he intended to give his son on the arrival of the latter at the age of twenty-one. Knowing the longing of his son to obtain an education, when the latter arrived at the age of nineteen, his father offered to give him the land then, if he wished to take it, and raise money therefrom, to procure an education. The son accepted it with avidity and sold it for $1200. He then went to Jefferson College at Canonsburg, Pa., entered the preparatory department and at the same time pursued additional studies in the college proper. He pursued his studies with great industry and untiring perseverance.

At the end of four and a half years from the time he first looked into a Latin grammar he graduated with the first honor of his class. During the last year and a half of his college term he also studied law at Washington, Pa., under the instructions of Hon. Thomas T. McKennan and his son, the present Judge McKennan of the U. S. Circuit Court. With rigid economy he made the $1,200 and a little interest realized thereon, sufficient for his support during the whole course of study. After graduating he continued the study of law at Towanda, and in less than a year was admitted to the bar.

He engaged in the practice of law and pursued it with such assiduity and ability that he soon obtained a large practice, and in a few years ranked with the ablest lawyers of his county. In addition to his large practice he also took an active part in the political questions of the day, and especially in the formation of the Republican party. He was a member of the first Republican State Convention of Pennsylvania, and also of the first Republican National Convention, which nominated John C. Fremont. He was chosen an elector at Lincoln's first election as President.

He was appointed President Judge of the 13th District, on the resignation of David Wilmot to take a seat in the U. S. Senate. At the next election he was chosen judge of the same district for the term of ten years. While in the fourth year of his service on the bench he was elected a member of the 39th Congress. On the 4th of March following he resigned the judgeship. He was successfully re-elected to the 40th, 41st and 42nd Congresses. During the eighth year of his term in Congress he was elected a Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania by some six thousand larger majority than was received at the same election by General Hartranft, the republican candidate for governor. He then resigned the remaining portion of his fourth term in Congress and took his seat on the Supreme Bench. On the first of January, 1883, he became Chief Justice of Pennsylvania, which office he held at the time of his death.

AN Ottawa, Ontario, despatch in reference to the fisheries question states: From an advance copy of the Government reports it is gleaned that the Government much regret the complications which have arisen out of the mis understanding, and have come to the conclusion to recommend that a committee be appointed to meet a committee of the United States Government and debate the whole question, with the view to arriving at a long date treaty, on terms similar to those contained in the treaty of Washington. The terms upon which the Government will insist are the retaining of the three-mile limit, from headland to headland, reciprocity in all respects with regard to fish, that no duty shall be levied on any fish preserved or in course of preservation, the fishery ground outside the three-mile limit to be open to all vessels irrespective of nationality, and all fishermen to be free to use beaches and shores for drying fish, nets, &c. Any encroachment on the three-mile limit to forfeit rights, but any other considerations the Government are willing to waive. The report is said to be due to the direct influence of Lord Salisbury and to have Imperial sanction, and there is little doubt but it will be willingly accepted by the Canadian House. Sir Charles Tupper's mission to Washington was to discuss with Sir Sackville West the most desirable terms and learn fully what clauses of a treaty would be warmly supported by the Imperial Government. It is reported that the Canadian members of the commission will be Sir John MacDonald, Sir Charles Tupper, and Hon. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

A STRANGE story comes from Turtle Creek, near Pittsburg, of fires and pranks played by unseen hands. Thomas McKee, a farmer living opposite tipple No. 4 of the New York and Cleveland gas coal company, and his family are the victims. The family consist of Mr. McKee, who is 60 years of age, his wife, a grandniece and a nephew. The first of the mysterious manifestations took place on Thursday a week ago, when all the doors of the house were locked on the inside while Mrs. McKee and here niece were milking. The same thing occurred on Friday night. On Saturday the clock and two vases were stolen and found in the field. Monday morning, during milking time, the dishes were set on the floor in a circle, and a cross made in the centre by sprinkling oat meal. Tuesday the fires commenced, the curtains being set on fire, Since then fires have broken out all over the house, in the cupboard, in the beds, pillows, curtains, and towels and in every room in the house. It has been by constant watchfulness that the house has not been burned down. Fires have started right in the presence of the watchers. A fire which broke out in the stable while the men were extinguishing the one in the house gained such headway that the building was totally destroyed. Mr. McKee is a United Presbyterian, and does not believe in spirits, but he can't account for the mysterious doings.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND is meditating a visit to St. Louis. But the Commander of the G. A. R. of Missouri requests that the President shall not time his visit during the meeting of the G. A. R. in Missouri's chief city. The Grand Army men do not hold Cleveland in very affectionate regard and the thoughtful commander fears that they may give the President the benefit of some offensive remarks. We confess we do not share in the commander's apprehensions in this respect, not believing that the soldiers would resent the insulting things Cleveland said about them. At the same time, the President of the United States should select another time for his presence in St. Louis.

MISS HELEN GRAY CONE, whose poems have given her a prominent place among our young women of letters, and Miss Jeannette L. Gilder, of the Critic, are at work on a book in two volumes, to be called, "Pen Portraits of Literary Women." The portraits are drawn by the women themselves, and by their contemporaries. With two exceptions, George Sand and Harriet Beecher Stowe, these portraits are of English literary women, from Hannah Moore to George Elliott. A concise biographical sketch of each, written by Miss Cone, is followed by descriptive anecdotes culled from every conceivable source.

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday gave an important decision, affirming the decrees of lower courts that mortgages, etc., owned by corporations are exempt from the State tax known as the four-mill and the three-mill taxes on such mortgages. This decision finally disposes of the important litigation between the State of Pennsylvania and about twenty corporations of Philadelphia. Half a million dollars of revenue were involved. The corporations that were parties to the suit include life and fire-insurance companies, trust companies, and saving fund societies.

MRS. L. F. BALDY, is about to establish a colony of silk culturists in Maryland. A tract of one hundred acres near Odenton will be divided among ten colonists, and by next spring she hopes to have the experiment fully under way. She proposes to raise grapes along with the silkworms, as the worms require but six weeks of care. Mrs. Baldy is a member of the Woman's Silk Culture Association of the United States.

TAPPING THE CIRCUS.

We kinder kalkilated—that's Bill an' Ike an' me,
We'd all go down to Sentinel Butte, and hev a sort a spree;
The day the Greatest Show on Earth were thar in one big tent.
We jedged 'twere something in our line, so naturly we went.

Inside we struck a table with a curious sort o' creeter,
An' a sign as said his name were Pharoah Salt Peter;
An' that he was a 'Gyptain king as lang ergo went hence—
The show had got the mummy at stupendous expense!

We stood an' sized it up erwhile when Ike turned 'round an' said:
"It 'pears to look erbout to me 'aif this gentleman were dead.
An' as I'm a cor'ner I 'low without no further fuss,
We'd better stop an' kinder see what killed the ornary cuss?"

Then Bill remarks: "I reckon it 'u'd be a good idea."
An' I chimes in with: "A inquest would jest erbout hit me."
An' then we set upon the corpse of Pharoah Salt Peter,
An' fixen a regular verdick in surprisingly short meter.

"Whereas, this P. S. Peter, bein' thar laying as dead's a stone, Therefore this jury finds he croaked uv causes quite unknown!"
We 'lowed that fifty dollars were what the job were worth,
An' collected from the treas'rer uv the Greatest Show on Earth.

HOMELY TRUTHS.

The man who promptly pays his bills,
The merchant's heart withpleasure fills.

The butcher does a rushing trade,
Who trims his meat before its weighed

The coalman has a conquest won
O'er self, who gives an honest ton.

For other's comfort naught she cares
Who at the play a tall hat wears.

They're on the high road to success
Who spend no time in idleness.

The man who safe his secrets keeps,
Upon an easy pillow sleeps.

Men's good opinions are his
Who grateful for a favor is,

No fault e'er find with those who sing,
For song is prayer upon the wing,

WHAT A GIRL SAYS.

When you meet me, lift your hat,
There is courtesy in that,
And the fair expression too
Of respect that is my due.

He, who lamely taps the rim
Of his hat—I answer him
With a stare—of scorn, at that.
When you meet me, lift your hat.

When you meet me, lift your hat.
How insiped, stale and flat,
Seems "Good Morning" from a man
With a head like his rattan.

For I always apprehend,
Who thus greets a lady friend,
Is a stick and bald at that!
When you meet me, lift your hat.

Our Story Teiler'

MISS DORINDA'S HEIR.

"And so Miss Dorinda Beam is dead an' buried!"

"Yes, an' hain't left no will—that's the wust of it."

Mrs. Grimes stopped churning to listen to the news brought by Neighbor Hockins.

"You don't say!"

"It's so," declared Neighbor Hockins, emphatically.

Beuly Bittersweet won't git nothin' after all, then," observed Mrs. Grimes, lifting the churn-lid to see if the butter was coming.

"Not a stiver. An' her allus brought up tothink she'd git it all."

'Tis too bad. I reckin Peter Fogg an' his woman'll come in fur the proppity, then?"

"Course they will, bein' they're the nighest of kin. All the kin-folks she hed, I reckin, fur her a' Beuly wasn't no ways related."

"I shouldn't think Miss Dorindy'd sleep quiet in her grave, with them Foggs a-handlin' of her things. She hated 'em like pizon while she was alive," remarked Mrs. Grimes.

"She hedn't ort to of put off makin' her will, then. But that's allus the way—folks keeps a-puttin' off an' a-puttin' off, a-thinkin' they're goin' to live forever, an' then all at once they're gone 'fore they know it. An' then it's too late. Miss Dorindy died awful suddint, they say—some sort of appellexy or the like. I dunno what Beuly is a-goin' to do, I'm sure."

And indeed poor Beulah herself scarcely knew what she was going to do.

"Everything here will be yours, Beulah, when I'm dead an' gone," Miss Dorinda had often declared. "That miserly Peter Fogg and his stingy wife won't get a stick nor a stone of what belongs to me! I kin tell him, if he is my nephew"

And now Miss Dorinda was dead and gone, sure enough, and Peter Fogg and his "stingy wife" were the heirs at law.

The place had been thoroughly searched for a will, but none could be found, and Lawyer Green, who attended to all Miss Dorinda's affairs, declared that he had not been called upon to make any will; and so poor Beulah was left penniless and alone in the great world.

One year ago, Beulah was the promised wife of Richard Barrymore, a stalwart young farmer, who lived with his mother in the old homestead, with its green orchard trees, its meadows of sweet grass, and waving fields of wheat and corn.

But Beulah was young and giddy, and when the new physician, Dr. Clarence Virden, began to pay lover-like attentions to her, Richard grew jealous, a quarrel ensued, and a broken engagement was the upshot of the matter.

Since that time Doctor Virden had continued his attentions, until Miss Dorinda's death occurred, and Beulah's unfortunate position was made public. Then his visits suddenly ceased, and he found it convenient to "pass by on the other side."

A week later, Mr. Fogg and his wife came to take possession.

He was a hard-featured, miserly man, and she a sharp-nosed, avaricious woman.

"The ole woman hed a heap o' plunder," remarked Peter, as he went lumbering through the parlors with his heavy cow-hide boots. "That there pie-anner won't be here long, though, nor them picters on the wall!" he declared eyeing the articles named with a calculating gaze. "I reckin' they'll fetch right smart o' money at the auction rooms, an' I'll cart 'em off an' sell 'em.'

"There's a hull trunk full o' the old woman's good clo'se," put in Mrs. Peter, who had been exploring the upper rooms. "You mout as well cart 'em off, an' sell 'em, too, Peter. I kaint wear 'em,"

"Course you kint," said Peter, gruffly. "What do you want of any more clo'se, anyhow? They you've got on your back is good 'nough for anybody."

Shocked and pained at their coarse remarks, Beula went to her own room, to think over her plans for the future.

"You kin stay here, if you work for your board," Mrs. Peter had informed her, but Beulah had declined the offer.

"I had rather beg my bread from door to door," she declared to herself, "than to stay with them. But where can I go?"

"Beuly!" called Mrs. Peter's sharp voice. "Come down—here's a feller wants to see you."

And Beulah sprang up with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes.

"Could it—could it be Doctor Virden?"

She caught her breath, her heart beat so violently with a sudden hope.

She hurried down with a pink flush, like the tinted heart of an ocean shell staining her cheeks, to meet—Richard Barrymore.

He took her hands in a firm, gentle clasp.

"Get your things, Beulah. I have come to take you home with me. Mother has a room ready for you, and you are to live with us."

"Oh, Richard, I—don't deserve it!" sobbed Beulah, remorsefully.

"Hush! Get your things," ordered Richard, authoritatively, "and let me carry out your trunk; my wagon is at the door."

And half-reluctantly, though with a feeling of relief at her heart, Beulah allowed him to lift her into the wagon, where he had already placed her trunk, and they drove away.

Peter Fogg was as good as his word, and before many days he drove into town with his lumbering farm wagon filled with the big piano, the handsome pictures, and Aunt Dorinda's trunk, containing her "best clothes."

* * * * *

The honeysuckle and madeira vines clustering about the old Barrymore farmhouse were full of bloom, and the scented petals of a tall cinnamon rose-bush were dropping lightly on Beulah's nut-brown curls, as she sat on the south porch with a basket of yellow September peaches beside her.

"Dick is so fond of peaches and cream," commented Beulah to herself, as she peeled and sliced the ripe, golden-hued fruit. "He shall have them every day while they last."

Just then the sound of wagon wheels was heard in the lane.

"What on airth is that Richard's got in the wagon?" asked Mrs. Barrymore, coming out on the porch just as the wagon came in view. "Kin you make out what 'tis Beuly? Your eyes are better'n mine air."

Beulah shaded her eyes with her hands and looked again.

"It—it looks like a big box," she said, doubtfully.

And so it was a big box with a piano inside of it. There was another box, also, filled with pictures, and a trunk.

Richard drove up to the door.

"I've brought you a present, Beulah," he cried, gaily. "The piano and pictures we'll put in the parlor, and this trunk I'll just take up to your room."

And calling Sim, the hired man, they carried it up at once.

Beulah could only look her thanks, and then ran up stairs to hide her tears.

Half an hour later she came dancing down stairs, laughing and crying together.

"Oh, Dick! Oh, Aunt Laura!" she cried, hysterically. "There was a will, after all; and here it is! It was in the bosom of Miss Dorinda's dress, between the lining and the outside. I thought I would hang up the clothes, to air them, after being shut up in the trunk, and just happened to feel this in the bosom of her silk dress. It was the one she had not worn for a good while."

It proved to be a genuine will, made three years ago, in St. Louis, where Beulah and Miss Dorinda had spent a few weeks one summer.

This accounted for Lawyer Green having no knowledge of it.

Beulah was soon reinstated in her old home, and Peter Fogg and his wife, after refunding the money paid for the piano and other articles, went back to their farm greatly chagrined at the unexpected turn of affairs.

"I wish the pesky trunk had of burnt up 'fore ever we went an' sold it," grumbled Peter.

In which unavailing wish Mrs. Peter coincided with him.

Among the visitors who soon flocked to congratulate Beulah upon her good fortune, was Doctor Clarence Virden; but much to his discomfiture he was informed that "Miss Bittersweet was engaged."

And so she was, in more senses than one.

For when the first October frosts had had crimsoned the trailing ivy-vines and turned the sumac and sassafras-leaves to scarlet and gold, Beulah Bittersweet was transformed into Mrs. Richard Barrymore.

Ascension Day Services.

A lady friend of this paper requests the publication of the following from a recent issue of a Chicago paper:

St. Bernard comman ery of Knights Templars was invited some time ago by Rev. Thomas E. Green, of St. Andrew's church, to attend divine worship on Ascension day. The invitation was accepted, and the hour for the services fixed at 4 30 o'clock yesterday afternoon St. Bernard commandery invited Apollo and Chicago commanderies to take part with it in the exercises, and these three commanderies marched to the church headed by the 2d regiment full band The line was down Washington boulevard to the church. It was 5.30 o'clock before the commanderies arrived at the church. The interior, near the altar, was decorated with magnificent foliage plants and palms. Before the chancel rail stood a beautiful templar cross of white and pink roses, and a red cross upon a blue bed of pansies. At the reredos were two vases of callas, while at either side of the altar were beds of potted plants and palms. Over the center of the chancel hung the banners of St. Bernard commandery. There was a full surpliced boy choir, and Rev. Thomas E. Green conducted the services. The Knights Templars marched into the church headed by the priest and choir, who sang for the processional hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers." Then followed the regular order of the evening prayer.

The lesson was from Ephesians fourth chapter, first to seventeenth verse. Rev. Mr. Green delivered a brief but stirring address, in which he laid stress upon the necessity of working for Christianity and morality. For the offertory Mrs. Daniel Shelby sang, "In Dreams I've Heard the Seraph Sing." It was decided to use the collection for a templar memorial. For the recessional hymn "Forth to the Fight, Ye Ransomed," was sung. When the services were ended the commanderies again took up the line and marched to their respective asylums, St. Bernard acting as escort to its invited guests. Among the prominent Knights participating were D. R. Cameron, D. C. Cregier, Dr. J. R. Wilkins, Henry Turner, L. D. Richardson, Robert Tatham, Andrew J. Guilford, J. J. Badenoch, H. G. Purinton, S. G. Wilkins, B. T. Wright, A. G. Lull, H. A. Wheeler, Henry Baker, George Moulton, L. L. Bond, L. H. Denby, A. H. Buck, C. S. Gurney, George L. Ward, C. R. Matson, Guy T. Gould, Greenville A Williams, Gorham B. Coffin.

"Just as the priest chanted the first words of the gospel at the high mass in Ascension church yesterday the chief acolyte extinguished the Paschal candle, a huge torch, handsomely decorated, which has stood on the altar steps and has been lighted at every service since Easter. This piece of ritual symbolized the cessation of the bodily presence of the Lord upon the earth. This festival in this parish is what may be called its anniversary, since it is from it that the church is named. There were five masses in all, beginning at 6 o'clock in the morning, and about one hundred made their communions. At the 11 o'clock celebration Farmer's mass in B flat was sung by the surpliced choir and a quartet composed of Mmes. Katzenberger and Van Ness and Messrs. Hammel and Lovell. Another innovation upon the service of the Protestant Episcopal church was introduced yesterday. The offertory, morning and evening, was sung in Latin. The Kyrie Eleison has been sung in Greek since "Father" Ritchie's time, but this is still another step onward. The offertory in both cases was the "O Salutaris Hostia," the one at the mass being by Rossini and the one at vespers by Millard, to which Mr. Bersina played a obligato.

Montjoie commandery, Knights Templars, attended the services at St. Mark's Episcopal church yesterday, and listened to an address by their chaplain, Rev. B. F. Fleetwood.

Kapiolani's Apparel.

Queen Kapiolani evidently intends cutting a wide swath at the Court of St. James, notwithstanding the fact Claus Spreckels, with a $750,000 mortgage on her kingdom, hovers like a shadow in her wake. Before leaving New York Her Majesty left an order with a big house here for a court dress in which to appear at the reception to be given her by Queen Victoria at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty selected the materials and was fitted in a specially prepared apartment draped in black satin and gold wall hangings. Azure blue velvet, of the richest quality, was selected for the court train and bodice, the train being adjustable, four yards long and lined with light blue moire, finished under the edge with a puffing of moire twelve inches wide, which has the effect of raising it from the floor and giving it a most graceful sweep. The train is three yards in width and disposed in plaits. On the outer edge is a band of peacock feathers, twelve inches wide at the edge of the train, growing gradually narrower as it reaches the waist, where it is but an inch and a half in width. The bodice is cut low with point back and front, laced in front with silk cord, the neck trimmed with exquisite duchesse point lace. The corsage is sleeveless, with a band of the feathers and duchesse lace. This gorgeous train will be worn over an underdress of light blue moire with demitrain sixty inches in length, finished with a double ruching of the same over a balayeuse of Valenciennes lace. The fronts and sides of the skirt show wide panels of peacock feathers, a band of the same feathers rounding the skirt. The firm will also furnish the regulation headdress, which is of feathers, and a veil. Her Majesty selected, to be worn with this toilet, a pair of suede gloves of a light fawn shade, which reach the shoulders, and slippers of blue velvet, lined with light blue moire.

Barefooted Hero.

Sacramento (Cal.) Bee.

About 6 o'clock last evening a thrilling scene was witnessed on Twentieth street between I and J. The people residing in that neighborhood were horrified to see a team of horses come dashing along the street, drawing a carriage in which was seated a beautiful little girl not more than three years old. The carriage bounded along the rough street, and everybody expected to see it overturned every instant. The little dot held on to the sides of the vehicle with a bravery that was surprising in one so young. Women screamed, some nearly fainted, and strong men remarked that the bady could not escape death

Presently a little barefooted boy, who could not have been over 12 years old, was seen to dash right in front of the swift-running horses, grab one of them by the bridle and hang desperately to it. He jerked the horses and yelled to them, and finally managed to turn them into a fence-corner, where they were stopped without any damage being done. It was a most daring feat on the part of the boy, and those who gathered about the carriage patted the brave little fellow on the head, and the women were so overjoyed that they fairly smotherd him with kisses.

After the little girl had been tenderly lifted out of the carriage an old German came running up, almost out of breath. He managed to exclaim: "Oh, mein Gott, is der horses hurt?"

"Say, Mister, there's der kid wot stopped yer hosses," said an urchin, pointing to the little hero, who stood at the head of the horses.

"Oh, ish that so?" remarked the German in an indfferent way.

"Johnny, I guess der man means to thank you," said the talkative boy; "but I guess he's too tired to say so."

The German entered his carriage and drove leisurely away, without even looking at the boy who had saved his child's life. Those who stood around and who had witnessed the horrifying event, muttered curses because the lad had not been given a handful of money, or at least a heartfelt "Thank you."

Fashion's dictum this year for commencement dresses is all white. The designs for making are simple and girlish, and the favorite garniture is ribbon, which is used in profusion. There are bows on the shoulders and waist, on the sleeves, supporting skirt draperies and sashes, and they are draped diagonally across the front, sides or back and finished at the ends in graceful flots. Lace is a favorite material, point d'esprit, platte Val and Fedora being much used. Point d'esprit dresses often have a flounce at the bottom of the skirt and the lower part of the drapery bordered with rows of narrow satin or moire ribbon set above a deep hem. A pretty idea is to make these dresses over white lawn. It is very effective and not half as expensive as made over silk. Skirts are cut walking length, waists unusually high, or sometimes pointed back and front, or cut square, so most becoming to the wearer. Sleeves are made in puffs finished with a frill at the elbow, or full at the top and gathered into a band at the wrist and finished with a band of ribbon and bow."

Briefs.

CLINTON, Mo., June 2.—At 5 o'clock on Tuesday evening workmen fired a shot in a well on Dr. H. P. Gilkerson's premises, in this city. A hissing noise, like escaping steam, was heard, and burning hay was then thrown into the well to expel the gas. When it was thought to be out Adolphus Ward descended, to go to work. About twenty feet down he called to those above to pull him out. The men at the windlass responded, but before he reached the top Ward was overcome by damp and fell to the bottom of the well, thirty-five feet, breaking his neck. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. Ward leaves a family in destitute circumstances.

PITTSBURGH, June 3.—The wage committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers held a meeting to-day in this city. A report was agreed upon which will be submitted to the annual convention to be held in this city on Tuesday next. The manufacturers are firm in their determination not to grant an advance with the market in its present depressed condition. It is thought that last year's scale will be finally adopted.

BRACEVILLE, Ill., June 3.—John Connelly, a miner of this place, this morning shot Mrs. John Stoddard through the heart, killing her instantly, and then shot himself. He was arrested and placed in jail. While the marshall was yet in the cell with the prisoner he drew a razor and before the marshall could prevent him cut his own throat. No cause for the tragedy is assigned. Connelly had, however, been drinking heavily.

PITTSBURGH, June 1.—A meeting of the owners of the blast furnaces of the Shenandoah, Mohaning, Wheeling and Pittsburg districts was held to-day, at which the demand for a reduction in prices of coke from $2 to $1.50 per ton was renewed. The members of the coke syndicate intimated that as soon as the strike could be settled they would give a definite answer. In the meantime the furnaces remain banked.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grevious mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and billiousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

As a physician says, it is a good deal safer and very much nicer to reject these substances, but there are many people who will doubtless continued to invite death by gulping down lemon seeds as they drink their toddy or lemonade, and who will run their chances with cherry pits and orange seeds.

Accident at a Quarry.

The Tvrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune sent to that paper, this morning, an account of a distressing accident from which we take the following:

On Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock a message was received here calling upon our physicians to come at once to Birmingham. Drs. Clarke, Lowrie, Gemmill, Smith, Arnold and Burket responded immediately. An accident had occurred at the quarries operated by the Cambria iron company, situated a short distance from Birmingham station. The quarries are worked from three places, each section being from 300 to 500 feet apart. There are employed a foreman and about twenty-five laborers in each. The one nearest the station was in charge of Clarence F. Stewart as foreman and Emanuel Sodders was blaster. In the forenoon a hole was drilled some eighteen feet in depth down through the rock which was charged with four kegs (twenty-five pounds each) of black powder. Two dynamite cartridges were inserted and the battery attached, but it appears the powder did not explode.

After dinner Mr. Stewart and Mr. Sodders came to the conclusion that the powder had got away amongst the crevices which abound to some extent at his working and commenced preparing to fix up another charge by removing the tamping. In doing so it is supposed that one of the dynamite cartridges had not exploded and that they had struck it

When the explosion took place, premature or otherwise, Messrs. Stewart and Sodders were hurled upwards and about one hundred tons of rock displaced, flying in every direction. Boulders weighing from ten to twenty tons were thrown right into the midst of the men and crushing them beneath. They were all, with the exception of three or four, terribly mangled, and with one or two exceptions, death must have ensued instantly. One horse had its legs broken and was afterward shot. A cart was smashed to atoms, while the horse attached to it was only slightly scratched. The following is the

LIST OF KILLED:

Clarence F. Stewart, Foreman. Supposed to have been killed in falling. Jaw broken and badly crushed otherwise. Aged 35 years. Resided in the town of Birmingham and leaves a wife and two children. He was a member of Tyrone castle. Knights of the Golden Eagle and also of the Cambria Iron Company Relief association. He was formerly in the service of the Pennsylvania railroad. A man of excellent character and well liked by everybody. His mother resides in this town. He has a brother very prominent in politics living in Colorado.

George Weiser.—He was literally crushed to atoms beneath a 20-ton rock, which was, after considerable delay, raised sufficiently to enable those present to scrape up his remains. He was aged about 57 years, resided in Birmingham and leaves a wife and one child.

Alexander Myers.—He was one of three taken from under another large boulder and was badly cut up Resided in Birmingham and was about 45 years of age. He leaves a wife and four children. A member of the relief association.

Jacob Schoenfelt.—Lived long enough to be carried home on a flat. Skull crushed and both legs broken. Aged about 47 years. Leaves a wife and seven children. A member of the relief association.

John Roof.—He was found near Myers and was crushed to death. Lived on the flats, aged 37 years and leaves a wife and five children. A member of the relief association.

Emanuel Sodders, blaster.—Badly crushed about the head. Resides on the flats. Leaves a wife and adopted daughter about ten years old. His other children, three daughters, are all married. He was about 57 years years old.

Harry Nail.—Taken from under the rock where Roof and Myers met their death. He was 18 years old and lived at home with his father and mother on the flats.

George Rolco, Hungarian.—Died at 7:30 Saturday evening. He received a compound fracture of left thigh and lacerated wound extending into the groin. Also a compound comminuted fracture of the right leg. Leaves a wife and one child in the old country.

THE INJURED WERE:

Thomas Hiosta, Hungarian, Slightly.

George Hiosta, Hunharian, Slightly.

Cosma Gusha, Russian, slightly.

Michael Wapner, Hungarian. A piece of rock had penetrated the right leg six inches above the knee, and tearing its way through, carried off two inches of the thigh bone. Left leg severely bruised. His condition is serious. Wapner is now at the Altoona hospital where he was taken on Saturday evening.

Noel Varner, of Birmingham, slightly injured. His escape from death was miraculous, being right in the midst of the slaughter, and a very short distance from Roof, Nail, Myers and Weiser.

Coroner W. H. Glenn was notified of the accident and arrived on the ground at 7 o'clock p. m., and immediately empannelled the following jury of inquest. S. C. Stewart, Andrew Robeson, D. A. Smith, A. G. Morris, W. S. Love and O. G. Smith, who after viewing the remains and examining into the cause, rendered their verdict, which was as follows: "Death was caused by an explosion in the Cambria iron company's stone quarry at Birmingham, Pa., supposed to be caused by the action of the drill on the rock, which drill was in the hands of Messrs. Stewart and Sodders, who were endeavoring to take out the tamping and this caused a spark from friction to explode the powder which was supposed to have exploded before."

The bodies of Messrs. Stewart, Weiser, Myers, Sodders, Roof, Nail and Rolco were taken to a frame building, near and used as an engine house, where they lay until Sunday morning, when they were washed, dressed, coffined and taken to their homes. Messrs. Weiser and Myers were buried Sunday, at 10 o'clock a. m.; Messrs. Sodders and Roof at 2 o'clock p. m., and Mr. Stewart at 5 p. m.

An Active Volcano.

TUCSON, Ari., June 7.—A dispatch from Hermosillo says the explorers sent out Governor Toares to ascertain the existence of the volcano as reported near Bavispe, Sonora, have returned. They report an active volcano fourteen miles southeast of Bavispe, in the Sierre Madre mountain. The party could not approach nearer than four miles of the mountain. The crater was pouring forth an immense volume of smoke, fire and lava, and boiling water was issuing from the side of the mountain. The lava, in vast waves, was slowly pouring down the mountain into the canons, which are being filled. Boiling water has destroyed all vegetation in the valleys in the vicinity. Boulders weighing tons are hurled down from the crater.

The exploring party says the noise proceeding from the mountain was most terrific—like a number of vast engines at work, accompanied by sounds of thunder. The air was dense with smoke and cinders. The party had a great difficulty in approaching within four miles of the mountain, owing to the great chasms made by the earthquake, and all the roads and trails are totally wiped out. The country is fearfully broken up. The entire surface of the earth presents a woebegone appearance, and not a bird or living thing could be seen within ten miles of the volcano.

The town of Bavispe is a complete ruin. The people have all moved out on the high plains and are living in tents. There has been a constant tremor and continual series of shocks daily since the first earthquake shock. Last night quite a heavy shock was felt at Tucson.

Death of Ex-Vice President Wheeler.

MALONE, N. Y. June 4.—The death of ex-Vice President Wheeler, which occurred at 10.10 a. m. to-day, was painless and life went out so gradually and quietly that it was hard to mark the exact moment of its flight. Though vitality had been decreasing slowly through the past six years, Mr. Wheeler retained his usual vigor up to perhaps six months ago. From that date he had failed rapidly. He was tortured terribly by insomnia and neuralgia, and was also afflicted with catarrh of the bladder. The night of March 3 he was seized with a chill followed by a sinking spell and then by fever, and for hours his physician thought him dying. He never fully rallied from that attack and his body and mind have wasted together. There has probably been softening of the brain, and for weeks he had been irrational. This brain affliction was the immediate cause of his death.

A Few Signed, but More Vetoed.

HARRISBURG, June 6.—Governor Beaver signed a number of bills to-night, among them one making an appropriation to the Wilkesbarre city hospital, except items for deficiencies for 1885 and 1886 and for improvements to the grounds and furnishing.

Among the bills vetoed were the following: Providing for commutation of term of prisoners; amending the act providing for the health and safety of persons employed in and about antbracite mines, and for the protection and preservation of property connected therewith; also, bills making appropriations for the pedestal of the Garfield monument, Fairmount park; for the erection of a monument to commemorate the first engagement on free soil during the civil war; for the pedestal for the statue of General McClellan and for the erection of monuments to the memory of Generals Meade and Hancock at Gettysburg.

Death of a Judge.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Chief Justice Mercur, of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, died at the residence of his son at Wallingford, Pa., at 9.30 o'clock this morning from congestion of the lungs. The deceased was taken ill on Wednesday, May 25, while attending a dinner given to the justices of the supreme court and a number of gentlemen by Counsellor Rufus E. Shapley, at his county seat, near Wallingford, and was taken to his son's residence near by. There congestion of the lungs was developed and the patient rapidly grew worse for a day or two; then he rallied, and the attending physicians expressed the opinion that with his vigorous constitution he had a good chance for life. His condition remained unchanged for more than a week and then seemed to take a more favorable turn. His death, therefore, was entirely unexpected.

Ex-Vice President Wheeler's Funeral.

MALONE, N. Y., June 7.—The obsequies over the remains of ex-Vice President Wheeler were held in the Congregational church this afternoon. Every foot of space was occupied in the large edifice. All business places closed at noon, and the body was viewed in the vestibule of the church by citizens and school children. Between 10 and 1 the church was beautifully decorated and the services participated in by ministers of all denominations. Ex-President Hayes and one of his sons were present.

A Break for Liberty.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 7.—Two convicts, both white, at work with others on the new supreme court building here, made a break for liberty this afternoon. The guard pursued and fired on them, bringing down one man when the other surrendered. The wounded man had a revolver, with which he cleared the way before him, threatening to shoot anybody who might attempt to stop him. He is seriously hurt, being shot through the arm.

Briefs.

PEMBROKE, Ont, June 6.—David Gogolin, the German, who in October last killed Mrs. Whereathal, his tenant, because she refused to vacate his house or pay rent, was hanged here this morning. A few minutes before the drop fell Gogolin sang a favorite German hymn with a clear and unwavering voice, apparently as cool as though an ordinary church service was taking place. He died without a struggle. He made no statement on the scaffold.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Six circuit judges were to be elected to-day, but three republicans and one democrat being on all the tickets, the fight was between Grinnell and Clifford, democrats, nominated by the members of the bar, and English and Kains, nominated by the democratic central committee and endorsed by the united labor party. Grinnell and Clifford carried the day by handsome majorities.

PROSPECT HOUSE, N. Y., June 5.—This has been quite an uneventful day with the president's party. The weather has been cloudy with a soft southeasterly breeze blowing strong enough to ripple the lake, but not so boisrous as to make it necessary to put on outside wraps. The president has had a day of complete rest, spent at the cottage with Mrs. Cleveland, and Mr. and Mrs. Lamont.

ST. PAUL, June 5.—Early this morning Thos. McCarthy shot Harry Smith with probably fatal results in front of the residence of the former in West St. Paul. Smith had been out during the evening with McCarthy's wife and McCarthy avers he has been showing her altogether too much attention in spite of frequent warnings to desist. McCarthy was arrested.

LONDON, June 6.—A dispatch from Lagos says that another serious dispute has arisen between the English and the French with reference to the ownership of a portion of territory on the coast near Porto Noro. The English and the natives had hauled down the French flags.

LEBANON, Pa., June 6.—Carl William Showers. the murderer of his grandchildren, was called for trial to-day, but in view of the present state of public excitement the trial was by agreement of all parties interested postponed until December.

KEY WEST, June 5.—C. T. Cragin died of yellow fever at the hospital last night making five deaths in all. There were two new cases to-day. The beard of health has declared the fever epidemic.

LITTLE ROCK, June 6.—Two Indians convicted of murdering a comrade, were executed in Seminole agency recently Both were shot to death.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

A Circular.

The following circular is being sent to the commissioners of every county in the State:

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 3, 1887.

To the Commissioners of—Co: GENTLEMEN: Your attention is called to the failure of the revenue bill, and the position of the Governor upon the subject. In justice to your county and its taxpapers it becomes necessary for you immediately to urge upon your Senator and members to insist upon an extra session, and have all your local papers demand the same. By this blunder (if such it be,) a great injustice has been done to the people and it should be remedied. Yours respectfully,

CYRUS STRAW.
Chairman Co. Com.'s Convention.

An Incorrect Statement.

We were informed on Thursday last that on the Sunday previous some one drove a dozen or more cows, owned in this place, over a barb wire fence near the mine bank, seriously injuring the animals. We were informed this morning by a gentleman living near the place that the statement is not correct. The animals went over the fence in a drove without being driven by anyone or frightened by a dog. As the blame would naturally attach to persons living near the place, the gentleman wants the fact distinctly understood that no one had anything to do with the unfortunate accident which happened to these cows.

—The high ground in the rear of Lawrence Brown's coal yard is being dug down on a level with the space in front. It will enable coal to be loaded from the rear part of the yard as easily as in front, and thus give more space.

A Young Man Caned.

WHAT OCCURRED ON MONDAY AFTERNOON IN A BUSINESS OFFICE.

On Monday afternoon the puddlers and rollers of the Valentine Ore Land Association assembled in the office of the firm in a body and presented to the retiring superintendent, Mr. H. C. Valentine, a handsome and elaborately ornamented gold headed cane. On it are inscribed the following words: "Presented to H. C. Valentine, by the Puddlers and Rollers of V. O. L. A., 1887." The inscription is followed with the beautiful triangle designed for and used by the Knights of Labor.

The presentation speech was made by Mr. Barry, who spoke in an appropriate way of the pleasant relations that had always existed under Mr. V's management; that he would take with him the best wishes of each of their number for his success in the new enterprise in which he was about to engage—"The Wash Ore Mining Company."

Mr. Valentine responded in fitting language and with that easy self possession so characteristic of him. He not only thanked them for their beautiful gift, but also expressed his appreciation of the hearty co-operation that they had always given him in his efforts to advance the interests of the firm, and of the faithful manner in which they had always performed their several duties.

He further said that years of experience led him to believe that he was about to turn over to his successor as thoroughly organized and efficient a crew of workmen as were ever banded together in any mill. Like occasions are rare and in these days of troublesome labor questions it is refreshing to see an instance like this of such harmonious relationship between employer and employed.

Mr. Valentine has been faithful to his trust and leaves this position with the respect and esteem of all.

Thanks.

At the last regular meeting of Gregg Post, 95 D. Pa., held June 4th inst., the following resolutions were adopted and approved:

1st. Resolved, That this Post is most thankful and appreciative of the generous donations of money, for defraying Memorial Day expenses, accorded by our fellow citizens.

2nd. Our thanks are due to the Logan Hose Co., whose splendid appearance did so much towards making the parade a success, as well as to our ever faithful allies the N. G. of Pa., of which Co. "B" of this place is a fine representative, our right hand man on Memorial Day, The Sons of Veterans, who will one day decorate as our successors no doubt, have proven their organization a most commendable one and have shown the respect due to their services by appearing in a proper manner in the parade on our last Memorial day last. The Pleasant Gap Silver Cornet band played well and too much can not be said in praise of its excellent marching music, dead march (in slow time) and dirges. The band has our thanks, as well as the Zion Cornet Band for this and past favors.

3rd. We are very grateful for flowers. The children who gathered them when they were so scarce, the parents and friends who encouraged their generous zeal and the kind ladies, who did the work of arranging them into one grand floral tribute to the dead soldiers whom we care for, deserve our utmost thanks and sincerest praise. Come next year, ladies.

4th. We thank all who helped in any way and record especial mention of the fine choir under direction of Mr. Schaeffer, Sec'y of the Y. M. C. A., whose singing was so much admired both in the Cemetery and in Court House in the evening. J. I. CURTIN, Com.

All the Events in Spring Mills.

W. R. Gray, whose leg was taken off, is improving, although at times he has great pain.

John Stover expects to make his future home in Marysville, where he goes to clerk in a store.

John Horner, who has been out West enjoying the storms, is home again. We are always glad to see old town boys return to their former home.

Uny Condo and Ed. Royer have joined the employes on the construction train. Uny and Bill Alters, known as "Italian," make the gang lively.

The Grenoble family being here once again give the town, especially their store, quite a natural appearance.

Thomas Kennedy is the champion fisher. He caught a cat fish on Thursday last that weighed four pounds. It measures 10 inches in circumference and was 14 inches long. In all, he caught 12 fish.

John Waight, the counter jumper in the Central Supply Depot, spent Sunday in Rebersburg.

Last Thursday's high water washed away part of G. A. Runk's saw mill.

Edward and Archie Allison spent Sunday last with their brother William.

The old M. E. church and lot are for sale. We hope if they are purchased they will be devoted to some good use.

G. A. Runk was about to return home and in fact was on his way thither, when sickness overtook him and he was obliged to tarry in Philadelphia, thus delaying his return.

William Jones and family, of Altoona, are here, accompanied by a lady whose name I do not know. They will make Spring Mills their home during the summer. ESQ.

The Evangelical Lutheran General Synod.

Dr. J. W. Rhone has put us under obligation to him for several copies of the Omaha Republican containing the proceedings of the 33d biennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the United States, now meeting in that city. The convention is being held in the Kountze Memorial church. They were welcomed in an excellent speech by Governor Thayer, and the mayor of Omaha, who seems to be a gentleman of high intelligence, also delivered a strong speech.

We notice that the church seems to be in a flourishing condition, the several reports stating facts in regard to an increase in receipts which are very encouraging. For instance, the Board of Home Missions report states that the receipts to that fund were $14,000 more than the year before, and that a special appeal for an extra $10,000 was more than met. The Foreign Mission board report a balance of more than $8,000 in the treasury. The Board of Church Extension received $2,000 more than any previous year. Other agencies of the church are correspondingly flourishing. Among the interesting events was a visit from Rev. W. A. Harsha, of the Presbyterian General Assembly, who extended the fraternal greeting of that body.

A Very Sad Event.

A large number of our readers will remember that not very long ago, this paper contained notice of the marriage of Miss Ella O'Leary, to Mr. Joseph Wise, of York. The wedding was a beautiful one, the bride a general favorite and the brightest prospects opened up before the happy couple. Her relatives reside in this place and the young lady was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Imagine then the shock which the electric message conveyed on Wednesday when the intelligence was received of the sudden death of Mrs. Wise. No particulars accompanied the announcement. With weeping hearts friends will hasten to that city to accompany the remains to this place. We deeply sympathise with the mourning friends in this their terrible affliction.

—The school board met Monday evening for organization. At the last election Mr. James D. Seibert was elected a member from the West ward over Nicholas Redding, by a vote of 102 to 34. Mr. Seibert received the largest vote in his ward, except Charles Cook, who received 107 in that ward. But Mr. Cook had no opposition, while a well known gentleman opposed Mr. Seibert. This extraordinarily large majority is a strong proof of his popularity. He would make one of the best members of the board, and it is extremely unfortunate that he cannot serve, as we understand is the case, he having moved from the West ward to the North ward.

—Prof. John Hamilton spoke in strong and very decided terms on Wednesday in the Court House on the subject of public roads. He compared the public roads of this State with those of Indiana. In the latter State, where the nature of the soil was much more unfavorable for the maintenance of good roads, they have been made by legislation much superior to those in this State. He advocated the immediate drafting of a bill in the interest of a similar system in Pennsylvania. He considered the present the best time because the assemblage of gentlemen before him were the ones to do it properly and satisfactorily, and to see that it is passed.

PHILADELPHIA Inquirer: In 1884 the tariff plank of the Democracy was a trap and a snare, as double-faced as Janus himself, being clearly meant to deceive and bearing the false label of the Democratic quacks. If the Democracy would, in 1888, but dare to come honestly out and fight the campaign on the distinctive lines of free trade against protection they would learn something which, if not wholly agreeable, would be certainly of real value to them if laid away for future use.

Disease and Death

Force their way into many a household that might be protected from their inroads, by the simple precaution of keeping in the house that benign family medicine and safeguard of health, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Particularly where there are children, should it be kept on hand, as a prompt remedy for infantile complaints, in their outset easily conquerable, but which, if allowed to engraft themselves on the delicate childish organism, are not easily dislodged, and speedily work grevious mischief. Irregularity of the bowels, indigestion and billiousness, are ailments of common occurrence in the household. Children, living in malarious regions, are more liable to be attacked with chills and fever than adults, and the ravages of that fell disease in their system are speedier and more serious. In remote localities, far from professional aid, it is especially desirable.

ONE day last week General Sherman, on being asked what amused him, proceeded to give the reason: "I am told," said the General, "that within a short time a back country man came into the town of Cumberland, West Virginia, accompanied by a colored man and began to make inquiries as to the selling price of niggers. He wanted to sell his colored man, so he said, and he came to town for that purpose. Neither he nor the darkey knew anything about emancipation or any of the events connected with the war."

Ladies will find relief from headache, costiveness, swimming in the head, colic, sour stomach, restlessness, indigestion, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency by taking Simmons Liver Regulator. It is not unpleasant, is purely vegetable, and is not injurious to the most delicate constitution.

IT is believed that Jay Gould has perfected a plan for tapping the Chicago and St. Louis grain trade and draining it into the Mississippi by rail at a point below freezing point, thence by barges to New Orleans for foreign shipments. To this end contracts for a number of link roads have been made to complete a system of railroads to accomplish this object.

The man who is too busy to be a gentleman during his active business life, generally finds it impossible to be one when he retires from trade.

Impurities of the blood often cause great annoyance at this season; Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and cures such affections.

WHAT SHE DREAMED OF.

I don't see what ails the girl! said Mrs. Popley, scratching her nose with the extreme end of her knitting-needle. I s'posed she'd be perfectly contented. Took out of the very edge o' the work-house, as it were, and made sort of 'own folks here, with a corner bedroom to herself and a fringed towel on the bureau, as a lady couldn't hev no nicer! And here she is, frettin' and cryin' half the time.

They're a fault-findin' set, anyhow, said Dorcas Jones. Ain't no use tryin' to satisfy them. I've giv' it up, long ago. Hired-gals is hired-gals!

But she ain't a hired-gal! protested Mrs. Popley. I've took her all the same as my own.

More fool you! remarked Miss Jones.

But she keenly observed Marietta Tyson (commonly called "Maritty") when she brought in the teapot, and the plate of hot biscuit for supper.

A tall girl, with eyes as black as cherries, and cheeks for all the world like they had been painted, muttered she to herself. She's pretty, I'll allow. I wouldn't take no such hired-gal into our house, with John Henry around. Men are so queer. I'd ruther do the housework myself, until I drop.

Dorcas Jone's visit was rather prolonged, and it was nine o'clock—a portentously late hour for those country wilderness—when at last the redoubtable John Henry escorted his aunt home, and Mrs. Popley came into the kitchen, where Maritty sat moodily by the fire.

Maritty, said she, is everything ready to look up and go to bed?

Yes, Mrs. Popley.

The old lady came to a dead stand-still.

Maritty, said she, you've been crying again.

Maritty jumped up and threw her arms around Mrs. Popley's neck.

I can't help it! she sobbed. Oh, I can't help it. I am so unhappy!

What troubles you, Maritty? said the old lady kindly.

I I want to be a lady! sobbed Maritty. I want a house of my own with a piano in the best room, and a carpet on the floor—that's what I want!

Hush! said Mrs. Popley. What's that?

Maritty turned scarlet.

It's the wind rattling the old lay-lock bushes against the wooden shutters, said she.

No, 'tain't, said Mrs. Popley. It's somebody knocking. Open the door, Maritty!

It's rats! perisisted the girl, who was now as pale as ashes. I—I often hear them when I'm here all by myself.

Nonsense! cried Mrs. Popley. Do you s'pose I don't know rats when I hear 'em? Open the door, I say, or I'll open it myself!

And she did open it herself, for Maritty had sunk trembling on a chair, her face covered by both hands.

A little old man stood there under the dew-dropping lilac-bushes, his white hair gleaming in the starlight, a certain imploring look in his faded eyes.

Good gracious! said Mrs. Popley, t's a tramp; and Popley gone to the city!

The old man, however, did not seem to hear her.

Maritty! he said in a faint, subdued voice—where's Maritty? I want to speak to Maritty.

I wonder, said Mrs. Popley, in a sudden panic, if we'd better loose the dog? Oh, Maritty! you'd better cut across the fields and tell John Henry Jones and his aunt to come back! They can't be gone far.

But Maritty had recovered herself all of a sudden. She rose and came to the door.

No, said she, 'tain't necessary to do that. It ain't a tramp—leastways it ain't a tramp that will do you any harm, Mrs. Popley. It's—my father

Your father, Maritty! grasped the good old woman.

Yes, the girl doggedly answered. He's on the town at Mudville, poor father is. I told you, didn't I, with a hard mirthless laugh, that we weren't a very prosperous family? And they ain't very good to him, nor he don't get any too much to eat; and so I've taken the liberty every night to give him the sour milk that was left in the pail. Father's dreadful partial to sour milk, and I didn't think it any harm, and——

Harm! cried the old woman. Tell him to come in—tell him to sit down right away. Give him some of the raspberry short-cake and a glass o' milk outen the night's milken'. But why on earth didn't you tell me, Maritty? Why did you keep this a secret from me?

The girl looked up with glittering wet eyes.

Did you s'pose I wanted folks to know how low the Tyson family had fell? said she bitterly. Father had a farm of his own once, and he'd 'a had it now of he hadn't underwrit for his brother and lost it all. And that's why I want to be a lady, with a house of my own—to give father a home.

Old Mr Tyson slept in the kitchen-chamber that night, rather to his own bewilderment; but he had reached that stage of docile servility in which he accepted all things as a matter of course, and understood very little about it.

Maritty told him that it was all right, and he implicitly believed her, and troubled himself no further on the subject.

I've a mind to let the poor old creatur' stay here, said Mrs. Popley There's the kitchen-chamber ain't never used for nothin,' and I shouldn't never feel what he eats and drinks. and he might do odd jobs about the barn.

Mr. Popley, however, who had by this time returned, shook his head.

Maritty's very well, said he; but we can't keep open house for all her people. There ain't never no knowin' where this things' goin to stop. I guess, Phœbe Ann, we'd better let him go about his own business, and tell Maritty to feed him at our back-door no more. I don't quite approve of the principal.

When Miss Dorcas Jones heard of this new development she chuckled within herself.

Ain't I glad that Maritty Tyson ain't our hired-girl? said she. I don't s'pose John Henry would fancy that sort of a girl, but there ain't no accountin' for a man's whims. And she has got a pair o' handsome black eyes of her own—for them as fancies black eyes. I prefer blue, for my part; with a glance at the cherry-framed glass opposite, which reflected her own faded blue orbs with painful accuracy.

That very day, however, just on the verge of twilight, when the sweet fern thickets were distilling their pleasantest odors, and the yellow glow in the west was turning to crimson, John Henry Jones met Maritty Tyson in the high-road.

Could you lend me your one-horse wagon, said she wistfully, for a couple of hours to-morrow?

Yes, the young farmer answered, with pleasure. Shall you want me to drive?

No! the girl replied with decision. That would cost too much; I want to go cheap.

Oh, I shall not charge anything for the driver, or the team, either! he said, shrugging his shoulders and smiling. When do yon want to go, Maritty.

I—I don't know!

You don't know, Maritty? he echoed in a tone of surprise.

Yes—and no! retorted Maritty. I've got to make enquiries first. I'm going to Bridgeport to get work in the factory.

In which factory?

In any of them. It don't matter which. They're always glad to get hands, folks tell me.

But you don't understand factory work.

I can learn, she insisted. And my father to care for now, I shan't let him go back to that place. I've got all my wages saved up, and it'll keep me until I secure a place in the factory—me and father, she added. And the time shall come yet when I'll be a lady, with a house of my own, and a piano, and a carpet on the best room floor, and a cushioned rocker for father?

John Henry surveyed her with admiring eyes.

You're looking a long way ahead Maritty, said he.

Perhaps, with a shrug of the shoulders. But every day I live is going to bring it nearer.

You'll have to work dreadful hard to get all that!

I mean to work, and to wait. Can I have the wagon, John Henry at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon? I think that time will do as well as any.

I don't believe you can, Maritty.

Her eyes flashed.

I don't care for myself; I can walk. But there's father. No matter, though! she cried quickly. I'll go and see if I can get Mr. Pratt's cart.

Stop a minute Maritty! said John Henry. I ain't as quick of speech as some folks; but I'd like to discuss this 'ere matter with you a little.

I hain't no time for discussion, said Maritty.

Yes, you have, said John Henry composedly.

* * * *

Miss Dorcas was slicing up apples for a pie that evening when Maritty Tyson came in. She viewed her with unsympathetic eyes.

So you've lost your place? said she.

I have left Mrs. Popley—yes, said Maritty quietly.

And you're a fool for your pains! declared the uncompromising spinster. Where do you expect to get a better place?

Here! said Maritty calmly.

Here! echoed Miss Dorcas. What on earth be you a-talkin' of? I don't want no gal. And I wouldn't hev you if I did, Come clear out! John Henry'll be comin' d'rectly, and——

John Henry's here now, uttered a calm voice at the back of the irate old lady's chair. And if anybody is to clear out Aunt Dorcas, it must be you! Maritty is coming here for good and all. She's my wife. We were married at the parsonage half an hour ago. I've liked her this long while, t I never had courage to speak out my mind before. And her father's coming to-morrow. We'll fix up the corner chamber upstairs for her father Aunt Dorcas. See Maritty, he added with honest pride, there's a carpet on the floor, just as you've always longed for, and here in the parlor there's the piano mother bought for poor Jennie, who died before ever she learned to play on it. And you shall be a lady, dear, with a hired girl to wait on you and your father, and there's nothing money can buy that shall be denied you. Speak up Aunt Dorcas! he went on, with kindling eyes and rising color. Either welcome my wife or leave the house! And don't be long in taking your choice either!

Oh, I'm sure she's kindly welcome! stammered Aunt Dorcas, with a spasmodic click in her throat Walk in Mrs. Jones. Lay off your hat and shawl, and I'll get the tea d'rectly.

And Maritty, with her soft dark eyes fixed tenderly on her husband's face, smiled to herself.

Me and father have got a home now, she murmured. With a piano and a carpet and all, even down to the cushioned rocker in the corner! Just what I always dreamed off! It seemed such a long way ahead; and yet all the time it was so near.

Gipsy Humor.

From Blackwood.

The Tziganes are rarely wanting in a certain humor and power of repartee, which often disarms the anger they have justly provoked. A gipsy being in prison for having sworn falsely, was visited by the priest, who tried to convince him of the sinfulness of his conduct in swearing to what he had not seen. "You are loading a heavy sin on your soul," said the priest.

"Have I got a soul?" asked the Tzigane, innocently.

"Of course you have a soul; every man has one."

"Can your reverence swear that I have got a soul?"

"To be sure I can."

"Yet your reverence cannot see my soul; so why should it be wrong to swear to what I have not seen?"

In a travelling menagerie, the keeper, showing off his animals to a large assembled audience, pointed to the cage where a furious lion was pawing the ground, and pompously announced that he was ready to give a thousand florins to whoever would enter that cage.

"I will," said a starved looking gipsy, stepping forward.

"You will?" said the keeper, looking contemptuously at the small puny figure. "Very well, please yourself and walk in," and he made a feint of opening the door. "Step in. Why are you not coming?"

"Certainly," said the gipsy. "I have no sort of objection to earning a thousand florins so easily; and I only wait till you remove that very unpleasant looking animal, which occupies the cage at present."

Of course the laugh was turned against the showman, who in his proposition had only spoken of the cage, without mentioning the lion.

A starving and shivering gipsy once craving hospitality, was asked to choose what he preferred, food or warmth. Would he have something to eat, or would he rather warm himself at the hearth?

"If you please," he answered, "I would like best to toast myself a piece of bacon at the fire."

A man abusing a gipsy who had stolen his horse, declared that he could produce half a dozen witnesses to attest the fact. "What are half a dezen witnesses?" said the Tzigane; "I can produce a whole dozen who have not seen it!"

Some gipsy proverbs run as follows: "After misfortune comes fortune."

"Better a donkey which lets you ride, than a fine horse which throws you off."

"Those are the fattest fishes which fall back from the line into the water."

"It is not good to choose women or cloth by candle-light."

"What is the use of a kiss, unless there be two to divide it?"

"Who has got luck, need only sit at home with his mouth open."

"Who wants to steal potatoes must not forget the sack."

"Two hard stones do not grind small."

"Polite words cost little and do much."

"Who flatters you has either cheated you or wants to cheat."

"Who waits till another calls him to supper, often remains hungry."

"If you have lost your horse, then you can throw away saddle and bridle as well."

For the Care of the Eyes.

Keep a shade on your lamp or gas burner.

Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness.

Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after coming from darkness to light.

Never read by twilight, moonlight or on cloudy days.

Never read or sew directly in front of the light, window or door.

It is best to let the light fall from above obliquely over the left shoulder.

Never sleep so that on first awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window.

Do not use the eyesight by light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that moment stop using them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them but apply saliva with the finger; it is the speediest dilutant in the world; then wash your eyes and face in warm water.

An English worker, a puddler by trade, recently remarked "In England I was only a puddler, in America I am a man." That is what protection does for labor. It makes it possible for a laboring man to be a man and a gentleman and live like a man, educate and raise his children and own his own home if he be sober, industrious and frugal. It is not possible to do this in free trade countries.

Boston car driver (to conductor)—"I intend to secure a substitute, if possible, for to-morrow." Conductor—"Indeed! And why?" Driver—"Browning's new poem is to be published in the morning and I wish to give it a thorough study."

A Fact Worth Knowing.

A physician in Genesee Co., N. Y., who has used Gilmore's Aromatic Wine in his practice, for several years, recently wrote to the proprietors as follows:—"I do not think you give sufficient publicity to the value of your Aromatic Wine in all cases of dysentery, cholera morbus and summer complaints generally. I have for three seasons past used it in many severe cases of the above, and it has never failed to afford speedy and gratifying relief." No proprietary remedy has ever received such general endorsement from regular physicians of high standing as Gilmore's Aromatic Wine.

Acker's Blood Elixir is the only Blood Remedy guaranteed. It is a positive cure for Ulcers, Eruptions or Syphilitic Poisoning. It purifies the whole system, and banishes all Rheumatic and Neuralgic pains. We guarantee it.

Busy Beaver.

HARRISBURG, June 1.—Among the bills signed by the Governor to-day were those amending the act of April 8, 1861, concerning the sale of railroads, canals, turnpikes, bridges and plank roads, extending provisions of the same to coal, iron, lumber, oil, transportation, manufacturing and telegraph companies and authorizing the purchaser or purchasers of any railroad, canal, turn-pike, bridge and plank road or telegraph at any sale hereafter made by virtue of any process or decree of any Court of this State or Circuit Court of the United States to issue stock or bonds secured by mortgage or both for their respective interests in the property and franchises purchased; relating to school districts in cities of the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh classes, providing for consolidation of districts; permitting stockholders of corporations to determine the number of directors and time for holding the annual election of officers; two bills were signed by the Governor to-day appropriating $800,000 for the care and maintenance of the indigent and insane in the different hospitals of the State; $100,000 for the deficiency for the same dependents upon the State.

BILLS VETOED.

Governor Beaver to-day vetoed House bill No. 60, entitled "A further supplement to an act regulating boroughs," approved April 3, 1851, authorizing the erection of wharves and the collection wharfage thereon; House bill No. 159, to provide for the creation and regulation of poor districts in the several counties of this Commonwealth, and House bill No. 348, entitled "An act to enable boroughs to adopt and construct sewage systems, and to assess and collect the cost therefor." The Governor says they all come in conflict with Section 7 of article 3 of the Constitution, which forbids the passage of any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs or school districts.

Taylor Makes an Explanation.

HARRISBURG, June 1.—The clerk of the late house of representatives, Thomas B. Taylor, came here to-day and made a statement under oath regarding his connection with last general revenue bill. He declares that the bill was compared and corrected in the presence of Chief Clerk Lesch and Colonel McCamant, chief clerk of the auditor general's department; that it was then taken to the desk of the president of the senate; that the chief clerk of the senate asked him what he had; that he told him and the chief clerk looked at it, and a few minutes later handing the bill back to him; that he then took it to the chief clerk of department and delivered it in person with no idea that it had not been signed.

Foreign Flashes.

HAMBURG, June 1.—A great fire broke out at 9 o'clock last night in the Strand. The Huletener Quays were speedily destroyed. Six large sheds were next gutted. The flames communicated to two British vessels—the City of Dorsmund and the Gladiator—and destroyed them. The masts and rigging of many other vessels lying at the dock were burned.

At 1 o'clock this morning the fire had spread over an area of about three hundred by four hundred yards. By 4 o'clock the flames were under control and not likely to spread further. It is not known whether there was any loss of life. The damage will be immense, reaching several million marks.

LONDON, June 1.—Twelve hundred coal miners at Bachmut, Russisa, who are out on a strike, attempted to rob a brewery owned by a firm of Englishmen. Fifty English workmen attached to the brewery mounted horses and resisted the attack of the strikers. During the fight which occurred three of the workmen were killed. Many of the strikers, who are all Russians, have been arrested. The conflict was ended before military aid arrived.

PARIS, June 1.—The clearing away of the debris of the Theatre Comique was concluded to-day. No more bodies were found. The official number found is seventy; of which fifty have been identified. Two wagon-loads of charred limbs have been taken to the morgue.

Signed by the Governor.

HARRISBURG, June 2.—The following are the important bills signed by Governor Beaver to-day and filed in the state department to night. To authorize the adjutant general to supply the Grand Army posts and Sons of Veterans within the state with such arms and accoutrements not necessary for the equipment of the National Guards.

Supplement to the act of June 11, 1879, regulating boroughs and providing for the adjustment of indebtedness and the government of boroughs, townships and school districts affected by changes of the limits of any borough in the state.

Prohibiting the employment of any children under 12 years of age by any person, company, association or corporation to do any work, in any mill, manufactory, or mine, or any work pertaining thereto. For the encouragement of forest culture and providing penalties for injury to, and destruction of the forest. Amending the supplement to an act limiting the time during which judgment shall be a lien on real estate or suits may be brought against the sureties of public officers.

Supplement to the act of June 30, 1885, to provide revenue and providing for the payment of the insured in making assessment under said act.

Relative to the settlement of certain military claims to Pennsylvania soldiers.

To repeal an act to authorize boroughs to contract for the payment of all taxes upon lands.

The governor has vetoed the following appropriations.

Forty thousand dollars to the State Agricultural society, $5,000 to the Grangers' exhibition at Williams Grove, and $10,000 to the American exhibition at London, all of which the governor says are forbidden in section 18, article 3, of the constitution.

Evictions in Ireland.

DUBLIN, June 3.—The evictions at Bodyke continue. The tenants are offering all the opposition in their power to the sheriff and his guard of police and troops, and find various means to seriously annoy the officers. In some of the houses from which the occupants were to be evicted cayenne pepper was burned the fumes of which nearly choked bailiffs. Boiling water was also thrown from the windows upon the evicting force. At two houses where evictions were effected collisions occurred between the police and the people, and a number of arrests were made.

When the sheriff's force arrived at the house of Tenant Lyddy, in the Bodyke district, to-day, and ordered the family to leave, a daughter of Mr. Lyddy threw an iron hoop at a bailiff who attempted to enter the door. The hoop missed the bailiff and struck a police inspector. The girl was arrested. A brother of the girl was also arrested for inciting the crowd to violence against the police. Another daughter of the tenant, who denounced the treatment her family was receiving was struck by a policeman and felled to the ground. This maddened the crowd and they advanced for the purpose of attacking the officers.

Michael Davitt, who was present at the eviction, pleaded with the people not to use violence, however, and barely managed to avert a collision. After the Lyddy family had been evicted the police made an attack upon the house of a man named McNamara, which was strongly fortified. Crowbars were used and a hole was made through the wall. Mrs. McNamara and children were in the house and cried piteously until Mr. Davitt shouted words of comfort to them Mr. McNamara was arrested for pelting the bailiff's house out of pure mischief. The force, after leaving the house, proceeded to that occupied by Tenant Hussy for the purpose of ejecting him. It is thought the police have extremely warm work before them.

Married one Year.

SARANAC INN, N. Y., June 2.—The anniversary of the wedding day of the President and Mrs. Cleveland dawned beautifully at Saranac Inn. At sunrise there was not a breath of air stirring, and the surface of the lake reflected every tree, hill, mountain range and cloud. There was promise of a fair and very warm day, but at 9 o'clock, when the cottage party came over to the hotel for breakfast, a breeze had sprung up from the west and the white caps were running across the bay just off Prospect Point.

When Mrs. Cleveland sat down to breakfast she found a little cluster of four-leaf clover at her place. She and the president were heartily congratulated upon the anniversary and were wished all manner of happiness and good luck. At 10 o'clock, after smearing their faces liberally with fly ointment, the president, Mrs. Cleveland and Dave Cronk went off in one boat, Colonel and Mrs. Lamont and McCaffrey in another, and Dr. and Mrs. Rosman in a third, to spend the day at Holt's pond, about three miles distant.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The anniversary of the president's wedding day was a day of quiet in the official portions of the executive mansion, but all the bustle and confusion of summer renovation and cleansing was observable in the public and domestic portions. Upstairs in the office the clerical corps handles the daily mail and carries on a variety of work of the kind that knows no intermission in the executive department. The president was nor heard from—not a telegram or letter from Colonel Lamont nor even a bulletin as to the fish-catching, and nothing has been sent to the president in the way of work to bother him during his vacation.

Ex-Vice President Wheeler's Illness.

ALBANY, June 3.—The Malone Palladium has the following statement of the critical illness of ex-Vice President William A. Wheeler: For ten days he has been conscious and rational only at intervals, and for the past two or three days in a stupor the greater part of the time. He is suffering from softening of the brain, and there are indications of approaching paralysis. A carbuncle has appeared just above the hip, on one side, and become an ailment of further weakness.

It seems impossible that he can rally, and his death at any hour would not be surprising, though he may survive for several days. Mr. Wheeler had been failing through the last five or six years, until last winter, when the progress of the disease became more rapid, and his physicians and friends began to fear the approach of the end.

On the night of March 3d he was seized with chills, followed by a sinking spell, and Dr. Gay thought for an hour that he would die. He afterward rallied, however, but never again regained his former vigor and strength. Mental weakness gradually became apparent, and increased, until first there were indications of insanity, and now of helplessness and unconsciousness.

Many Children Killed.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., June 2.—A terrible panic prevailed here yesterday afternoon in the Catholic cathedral, caused by the falling of a candle, which set fire to one of the altars. The day being a religious holiday, the church was crowded to overflowing principally with women and children. At the sight of the smoke the crowd became frantic, and the usual scene of a terror-stricken, struggling mass of humanity followed. Several children were killed and quite a number of women severely injured. The scene at the main entrance of the church was pitiful. Women and children were lying about, crying with pain, while the doctors were doing their utmost to resuscitate the sufferers. Official reports of the number killed are not obtainable at the present writing.

Memorial Exercises in Milesburg and Vicinity.

Post 261, Milesburg, attended Methodist Episcopal church in that place on Sunday May 29, and listened to a most excellent sermon preached by the pastor, Rev. Geo. W. Bouse. Text from Numbers 14:24.

On Memorial day the Post sent details to Advent church, to New Cemetery, Milesburg, to Fairview and to Curtin, to hold services and decorate graves of soldiers buried at the several places mentioned. In some of those graveyards and cemeteries lie the remains of heroes of four wars. In Advent church yard, war of 1812, Mexican and of the Rebellion. In Curtin cemetery and old churchyard, the Revolution, 1812, and Rebellion. In old graveyard, Milesburg—Revolution 1812, Mexico war and Rebellion.

The Curtin band furnished the music at Advent church. James Kreps, S. V. C., had charge of ceremonies. J. A. Fiedler read a poem and Will E Gray, Esq., delivered the oration. The ceremonies were in keeping with the occasion, the poem appropriate and the address excellent. The Post detail returned to the Post room, where a lunch of the very best kind was spread and served to all who called, by the Woman's Relief Corps of Post 261. The table remained all day and as often as cleared was filled again. Too much praise cannot be accorded the ladies connected with that organization for their zeal in the cause.

At Curtin the Post detail and Sunday schools and citizens marched to the cemetery on the hill, the whole procession preceded by the Curtin Band. After the services as laid down in the ritual Mr. J. A. Fiedler was introduced and read another beautiful poem. He was followed by Will E. Gray, Esq., in a very fine address. Hon. A. O. Furst was then introduced and made a very interesting and welcome speech. It was the second time the Judge spoke there on such an occasion. Mr. M. M. McClintock and choir conducted the singing.

At Fairview Cemetery, three miles north of Curtins, only one soldier is buried, Abram Heaton, of Co. F, 200 P. V. A detail of eight comrades of the Post met the family and friends of the deceased there at 11 a. m. The services were held, the grave decorated and Past Department Commander Curtin read a short poem and spoke briefly. Then the detail returned to attend the ceremonies at Curtin.

The services at Milesburg old cemetery were held at 4 p. m. The Milesburg Band in front, followed by Centre Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Milesburg, and the Post in full ranks in the rear marched to the M. E. church and received the Sunday-school, marching then to the cemetery. There a square was formed and the ceremony proceeded with. The chief marshal was Past Dept. Commander Curtin, assisted by Jos. A. Green, Jas. Bradley, Alfred Smith and Alf. Moore. At the cemetery J. C. P. Jones, commander of the Post, took charge of the ceremonies. The choir was a good one under Mr. L. T. Eddy with Mr. Schaeffer as cornetist. Several appropriate hymns were sung. Mr. W. E. Gray was introduced and in fitting words spoke of the day and its uses. Hon. A. O. Furst followed in a most excellent address. It was the second time for him to speak in this cemetery as well as at Curtins, on such occasions, and the people will be glad to have him and Mr. Gray return some other year to deliver orations on Memorial day. This closed the day for 261. It was fittingly observed by all the Post and the citizens.

Unionville Items.

All nature seems vigorous at present under the influence of the late refreshing showers and the grass crop will be very much increased.

Within the last few weeks several children and grown persons have had the measles in this vicinity. An 18-year-old daughter of Mr. Henry Bush was exposed to the cool air too soon after having the disease and took cold which resulted in her death on last Saturday. Her remains were interred on Decoration day in the Disciple cemetery.

J. Cleaver has accepted a position in the employ of the Pennsylvania Furnace Co. to take care of survey and sell their lands lying along the Bald Eagle ridge in Centre and Blair counties.

There was a large turnout of citizens to the different grave yards and cemeteries on the 30th to decorate the mounds of departed soldiers and friends, and interesting services were held in the M. E. church in the evening.

Rev. Laning has purchased three more lots from Wm. P. Fisher and employs his spare time in cultivating small fruits and vegetables.

B. Rich has just returned from a business trip to West Virginia. J.

—On Sunday, the 12th, the second Sunday in June, both the Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday-schools of Bellefonte will celebrate what is known as "Children's Day." It is a religious festivity appointed at a time when flowers are the most plentiful and the weather most delightful. The churches are handsomely decorated with flowers and green plants and branches. Appropriate mottoes are constructed and everything made beautiful, instructive and suggestive. The exercises consisting music, recitations and Scriptural readings all illustrate the most beautiful and attractive truths of the Bible, and the occasion is ever an enjoyable one. The exercises in the Presbyterian Sunday-school will, we learn, be more than ordinarily important because of the presence and participation of His Excellency, James A. Beaver, Governor of Pennsylvania.

A Wedding in Philadelphia.

The marriage of Mr. William Bigler Miller, of Spiece, Miller & Co., Philadelphia, to Miss Annie O. Wertz, of Berwyn, Pa., occurred on Wednesday evening in Christ's Reformed Church, below Sixteenth street, in Philadelphia. The church was beautifully decorated with roses and smilax. The bride was attired in a robe of rich cream-white crepe, high corsage and bodice trimmed with white moire silk. The train was square cut, edged with shell trimming. Rev. James Crawford officiated, assisted by Rev. Ravel Smith. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the happy couple were driven to the Lafayette Hotel and at once left on an extended bridal tour to the West and to Luray Caverns. They will spend a few days at Bedford where relatives of the groom reside.

Many prominent persons were present from various parts of State. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be "at home" to their friends on June 29 at their summer home in Berwyn, Pa. This paper unites with many friends in wishing them happiness and prosperity.

Th Boiler Works.

We hope that nothing will be done that will in the least discourage Mr. Maitland from establishing his boiler works in Bellefonte. We care nothing about the location to be selected, but it should receive encouragement. The boiler works will be an important industry, and their establishment will, perhaps, be followed by another yet more important and employing about 150 persons.

The other industry which is expected to follow is one to manufacture light and ornamental hardware and such articles as cornices, etc. The proprietor is a relative of Mr. Maitland. We don't deny that boiler works cause a noise, but who can expect to live in a town that is as quiet as a rural village at midnight? Besides people in time get used to a noise and feel lost and lonesome when they cannot hear it. It is music to them. So we hope Mr. Maitland will go ahead and it would pay business men to see that he has a desirable location at the least possible expense.

Trim Your Trees.

We are going to ask the owners of trees that grow and spread their branches along Logan St. sidewalks to cut off the lower branches. Trees are useful and beautiful and should be encouraged, but when they are permitted to grow in a wild sort of a way along thoroughfares, they become a nuisance. Instead of ornamental shade trees they become an African jungle. This has been brought to our attention by young ladies who pass along that way who say they run into the branches of the trees to the serious detriment of their good bonnets and carefully arranged back hair. They also find it impossible to carry umbrellas there for the same reason. Cut off the lower limbs. It will improve the appearance of the trees and remove a serious inconvenience from the path of pedestrians.

—A special feature of the annual meeting of the State teachers' association at Clearfield in July will be an exhibit of school work. A circular issued says: That the exhibit shall be an entire success is the earnest desire of the committee. The lively co-operation of college, normal school, high school principals and the public schools generally, is earnestly requested. Let us have a prompt and general response from the entire State. The exhibit will embrace drawing, penmanship, examination papers in any or all the branches, industrial work, cabinet collections of minerals, plants, herbariums, etc. Work will be received until July 2, and should in all cases be addressed to the chairman, J. C. Barclay, Clearfield, Pa.

Letter List.

Following is a complete list of the letters remaining uncalled for in the post-office at Bellefonte, Centre county, May 30, 1887:

Mrs. Cardie Bead, Andrew Dunkle, T. Hone, T. C. Heims, Miss Kate Harosacker Mrs. Clara K. Hannam, Chas. S. Laughlin, James Lenhart, John Miller, Mrs. Sode Read, Taylor Brothers, C. B. Tierney, Tamene Williams, L. A. Woomer.

When a letter is asked for please say advertised.

JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—There is visiting at the home of Rev. Mr. Hicks, of Duncansville, at the present time, a very distinguished English divine, Rev. Dr Geo. Sexton, of London. Dr. Sexton was last year awarded the gold medal offered by the London society of sience, literature and art for his work and productions along the line of scientific research. He preached for Rev. Mr. Whitney in Altoona last Sunday.

—Mr. A. B. Lucas is now the local agent for the Manufacturers' Accident Indemnity Company, of Geneva, N. Y. While we know nothing about the company, we can testify that Mr. Lucas is a most worthy and excellent young man, and the company is fortunate in securing his services.

The Dandy Game of Base Ball.

For some time past a game of base ball has been talked of, to be played by the printers and cigar-makers of this place. On Thursday Mr. Swaverly, of the Centre Democrat, comes out with the astonishing announcement that "The printers are ready." Yes, Swaverly is correct; the printers are ready. They are, at all times, ready for anything, and we can suggest a few of the positions to be taken by the players, so far as the printers are concerned. Mr. J. A. Fiedler must constitute the catching part of the battery. He has an undoubted capacity of catching anything, whether it be fair or foul, and although he has not perhaps devoted as much space to balls as has the writer, yet a few minutes practice will render him proficient. Mr. Swaverly, who is always so ready, will act as base runner for all the batters. It would be worth double the price of admission to see him flying around the bases. Four strides will suffice to take him home. Quite fortunately, Will Cassidy is a veteran base ballist, and will make an admirable short stop or first baseman. Then there is Mr. Scott, who is now engaged in the laundry business. He is an expert on washing white-clothes and with his aid we can whitewash those cigarmakers, so that they will never reach the home plate. We suggest one of the fair lady compositors for umpire. No one can complain of her decisions.

—Improvements continue to be made on the space between the Court House and the Jail. A wide walk will lead directly up from the Court House to the jail building and on each side three terraces will be made at proper intervals. A lady looked at these improvements the other day and shook her head disapprovingly. "The space should be bridged," she remarked; "and the bridge structure should be called the Bridge of Sighs." Her heart is evidently full of compassion for the poor creatures who walk from the halls of justice to the prison pen to remain for a term of days or months. And, although we agree with her that there is much which is melancholy in proximity to such structures, yet it is quite right to make all the surroundings as agreeable as possible. And people who frequent the "Park," as we have termed it, may reflect that if they do right they will not find it necessary to have anything to do with either place, and that such institutions have their proper use in this world.

—The cadets of the State College went into camp on Thursday at McBride's Gap. A telephone from the College informs us that they started at half-past one o'clock p. m. to the scene of the camp to spend a week. The weather is not very favorable for camping out as the unusual dampness which prevails is liable to give some of them a bad cold. But wet weather just at this time last year prevented them from camping out and they are determined not to permit the elements to interfere with the sport this time. For their sakes, we hope for a comparatively dry week.

—The Presbyterian of this week, just received, contains the notice of the dedication of a church in Dakota to the memory of a noble lady well known in this, and in the adjoining county, where she was born, and who devoted her whole life to the welfare of her church. The notice is as follows: The new Presbyterian church in Sterling, Dak., was dedicated on Sabbath, May 1st. A tablet to the left of the pulpit has this inscription: "This church, as a memorial to Nancy Milliken Reed, was built A. D. 1886, from funds mainly contributed by her children."

—Charles Erin Verner's "Shamus O'Brien" Company, which was to come to Bellefore on two different occasions, and didn't come at all, behaved excellently and deserves credit. The warm weather came on suddenly and the actors' terms of engagement had more than expired, so they disbanded. But they paid all the bills they contracted in Bellefonte. The company is a representative one and does not willingly injure or disappoint anyone. The company may give Bellefonte a date next season.

—Numerous shade trees along the streets are injured or killed by horses and cows, but the damage caused by the horses is what now occurs to our mind. Drivers are accustomed to fasten their horses to such young and tender trees. There the animal regales himself by gnawing at the bark, totally preventing the flow of sap and the tree withers and dies. We have noticed several instances of this. Drivers should be more careful and should find a regular hitching post.

—On Tuesday, the last day of May, Mr. Bartrim Galbraith, of this place, was 77 years of age. We had no idea that he had reached such an advanced age, and consider him quite a remarkable specimen of well-preserved humanity. He is now and has been for many years the janitor at the Court House and attends to his duties as well as any one could. We wish him a continuance of good health and activity.

—Lawrence Bathurst is a poor, hard-working man and a cripple. He lives near Curtins Works. His principal way of making a living is by hauling with a two-horse team. A few days ago he had the misfortune to lose his most valuable mare and cannot by any means of his own replace her. A few of his friends are raising some money for him. Mr. Joshua Folk, of Bellefonte, has a book for that purpose and will bring the appeal to the notice of the charitable of Bellefonte. He will give you a call.

—The next school year will bring a change in the borough schools. We now understand that all the teachers who taught during last year, except one, will teach again. Then three or four new ones will be required. The colored children will attend the other schools, according to their grade, and the distinctive existence of the colored school will be no more. Prof. Milton Furey, who has been teaching the colored school, will be transferred to the large stone building. Prof. Lieb will not devote as much time to teaching as formerly, but having a larger number of schools under his care, he will superintend all of them thus giving to each school, to a greater extent than before, the benefit of his culture and experience. By the way, how fortunate it is that the new school building will be completed in time for the opening of the schools as the large increase of population will greatly increase the number of pupils.

One More Railroad.

What more certain sign of real prosperity than numberless railroads? That is just what Bellefonte is now getting the benefit of, and soon can claim the site of the State Capital, not only because of its central location, but also because it is the radiating point for the great highways of travel. Another is added to the list, the Lock Haven Democrat being informed that the Wilkesbarre and Western railroad company are now surveying a line for a railroad from Watsontown through Sugar and Nittany valleys to Bellefonte, with a branch from Washington Furnace to Mill Hall to connect with the Beech Creek road at that place, with a view of carrying coal from the Beech Creek coal basin to the eastern markets. It is said this will be the shortest line from the Beech Creek and Snow Shoe coal fields to New York.

—Friday morning a small colored girl brought into the office a communication on the base ball question. It is not very legible and has no signature, but it is to the effect that the Black Diamond base ball nine is equal to the best in the county and is willing to play any club. The letter further says that J. Miller, the first pitcher, C. Miller, second pitcher, A. L. Miller, first baseman, and J. Delige the short stop, are equal to half of any nine. Further more, it says that A. L. will strike out every other man that comes to the bat and the Black Diamonds will get there without fail. The concluding sentence is in effect that A. L. Miller is a good player and his nine can depend on him at any time.

They Go Down.

Everything in the lower part of town on Friday afternoon seemed to be inclined to go down. Near 5 o'clock there was a crash at L. L. Brown's coal yard and a trestle on which was standing a large car filled with coal sank to the level of the ground.

Later in the evening too much humanity balanced itself on the railing at the north side of High street bridge across the race and it gave way. Several of the men balanced on it were almost precipitated into the water. Bridges and railings should be constructed strong enough to support all who can crowd on them.

Just the Thing.

A cornice factory in Bellefonte is just what is wanted and the car works buildings would suit admirably. It is said that there are no such factories in the East where most of the cornices are used. All the large business buildings now being constructed must be surmounted by handsome ornamental cornices and why not manufacture them here? It would be a thousand times more profitable than to take the iron ore to Pittsburg to be made into iron and from there to a western city to be converted into a cornice. The work could as well be done at home.

—All persons wishing to contribute to the carpet for the Y. M. C. A. Hall are requested to send their donations of rags for the filling or money for the weaving in the course of the coming week, to Mrs. James Harris, Spring street, or Mrs. W. P. Wilson, High street. As this is a matter much needed and in which the whole community ought to be interested, there are many persons whom the committee have not been able to call upon, and it is hoped this appeal will meet with a general and prompt response.

MRS. R. V. PUGH,
Sec'y Ladies' Aux. Y. M. C. A.

—The post supporting the awning in front of Charlie Rian's cigar store has been cut about half through by persons who evidently wanted to show that they owned a pocket knife. As Charlie desires the awning to remain in position a few days longer, don't whittle the post any more.

—The meeting in Y. M. C. A. hall next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock is to be a public one—that is, it will be open to everybody. For several months past all the meetings have been for young men exclusively. It is hoped that the attendance next Sunday will be very large.

BLOOMINGTON, ILLS., Sept. 18, 1886.
Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.:
Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure. Had catarrh all my life; am 48 years old Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough for five years. Have taken everything; went to the Hot Springs; I have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced using Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would try your medicine. I was very bad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it. I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are ten of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them. I only wish that every one who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough could see me, so that I could tell them all to take it. All that know me here know how I have suffered. (I have been here since 1858,) and say to me that "I am so glad you found something that could cure you." Everyone says, "How much better you look." The doctors say they are glad I found Hall's Catarrh Cure as they could not cure me.

I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good Hall's Catarrh Cure has done me. You can use as much of this letter as will do the afflicted good. Publish it to the whole world—it is all true and they should know it.

JOSEPHINE CHRISMAN,
406 East North street.

—Brinton, Duncan & Barnes have purchased of Dr. E. W. Hale a valuable property located in Philipsburg on the west side of North Front street. The plot, says the Journal, contains a front of 132 feet, running back 240 feet to the Pennsylvania Railroad, and is bounded on the south by Pine street and on the north by an ally, which renders the property accessible from four sides. On it is located the big steam grist mill—a valuable building—the bank building, and the large mansion directly opposite the Loyd House.

—It is stated that the burning of brush after night is in violation of a statute of this State, and a penalty of $50 is attached in case the law is disobeyed. This item of information may be of interest to some of our rural readers. We presume the idea is that there is danger of flames spreading to fences or buildings, and also burning the woods in the neighborhood.—Huntingdon News.

—Beezer's distillery caught fire at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, but the fire was extinguished before it had done much damage.

—Lots on Curtin street are increasing in value. The new houses to be erected by F. W. Crider will greatly beautify that thorough fare.

—Any one who reads carefully the borough ordinances relating to huckstering will be surprised at the ravelations there contained.

—The Tyrone Daily Herald records the presence of "Business Manager Brooks, of the Bellefonte NEWS," in that place on Tuesday morning.

—Despite the rain storm, about one hundred persons attended the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon and it was of great interest.

—The residence of Sylvester Ray, Esq., on Howard street, has been vastly improved this Spring and presents a very handsome appearance.

—The reunion of the Pennsylvania Reserve Association has been postponed until September 14, the anniversary of the battle of South Mountain.

—Alexander Myers, who was killed in the accident at Birmingham on Saturday afternoon, has relatives living in this vicinity and is well known here.

—Rain has continued to fall almost unceasingiy ever since the present moon was new, and the change to dry weather which some people expected would occur at full moon (Sunday) did not take place.

—There will be a meeting at Brown's Hotel, Bellefonte, Pa., on Tuesday, the 14th of June, at 1 o'clock p. m. of all parties who procured Bohemian oats of the Crawford Henry Seed Company and others.

—Cards of invitation have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brooks, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie, to Mr. T. C. Bell. The event will be consummated on Thursday, June 16, at 5 o'clock p. m., at their residence near Pleasant Gap.

—The pavement on High street is in a very bad condition. Many persons who traverse it are so unfortunate as to step on a loose brick which splashes the muddy water all over them. We saw a young gentleman the other day who was particularly unfortunate in this respect.

—Additions, repairs and improvements to the extent of about $500 have been made to Mr. E. Graham's handsome dwelling house on Linn Street. The work is completed and now it is a delightful place, vying in attractiveness with the other residences on that street.

—On Sunday there were seven male teachers and fifteen female teachers present at the Methodist Sunday-school. The total attendance was 384, and the collection was nearly seventeen dollars. We are informed that so far as the collection is concerned it was not quite as large as usual. In other respects, however, the figures given above show real progress.

—On Monday Company B, N. G., received fifty-five Springfield rifles, 45 calibre. They are a very fine rifle, much superior to the ones recently in use, and the members of the company will be very proud of them. We congratulate the company on this very important fact, and have no doubt that with such superior arms their standing in the regiment will be even higher in future than in the past and present.

—Dr. J. W. Rhone reached the destination of his western trip (Omaha, Neb.) on Wednesday of last week. Since his stay in that city he has not only attended the sessions of the great religious gathering of which he is a member, but he also had the pleasure of meeting many people who formerly lived here. Mrs. Williams, whose home is in Lincoln, came to Omaha, and of course was glad to see her Centre county acquaintances. Dr. Larimer and wife and Misses Nellie and Mollie Larimer, who are now there, renewed their acquaintance with Doctor Rhone. A Mr Zerby, who is from this county, also gave the Doctor a warm welcome. The Doctor is pleasantly located and considers Omaha a very beautiful city—much like Minneapolis, Minn., in its appearance and rapid growth. The Synod will close this week and after the Doctor has paid his respects to a few of his friends near by he will return home.

ROYALLY ENTERTAINED.

THE VARIED AND PLEASING EXERCISES IN GOOD TEMPLAR LODGE ROOM.

Very little has been heard of late concerning the Good Templar Lodge. That it is in a prosperous and healthy condition was manifested on Tuesday evening, when its friends had the pleasure of listening to exercises which were truly delightful. The Y. M. C. A. hall, which once each week becomes a Good Templar Lodge room, was well filled. A half dozen artistically arranged bouquets graced the piano, reading desk and other prominent pieces of furniture in the front part of the hall. Dr. D. S. Dorworth, who now fills the position of Chief Templar, opened the exercises and Rev. J. A. Woodcock offered a prayer.

The first literary exercise was a recitation by Josie Williams, a quite small but exceedingly bright little girl. Her voice is strong and her enunciation distinct. The recitation was charming and at once elicited the enthusiasm of the audience.

Miss Fannie Twitmire, a charming soloist, followed with a choice selection displaying to advantage her really fine voice. Miss Josie Shrom accompanied her on the piano.

The very excellent recitation given by Miss Maggie Teets, of Unionville, increased the delight of the audience. This young Miss has decided natural talent which is being encouraged by careful practice. She accompanied the words with suitable dramatic action, which had a telling effect.

The gentleman who was to have been the chief speaker of the evening, Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., being unavoidably absent, Rev. Mr. Woodcock read a suitable extract of a temperance character, accompanving it with remarks. He then called for D. S. Keller, Esq., whose address was an excellent one. Among other things, he said that a great and healthful change in temperance sentiment has been effected during the past five years. He believes that the failure of the constitutional amendment in the legislature, two years ago, was really a blessing in disguise to temperance people. Such a radical change as it involves must have suitable public sentiment to enforce it, which was probably wanting then. The advance in such sentiment during the past two years has been unprecedentedly great, and two years longer of similar effort will suffice to carry the amendment. Do not trust to past successes, nor relinquish one tithe of our efforts. No greater mistake could be made than indifference now.

When next the members of the legislature are to be elected the struggle will be the most hotly contested of any. The last time the opposing influence was in a measure taken by surprise, but in the approaching contest they will be equipped with every resource of money and power. Be prepared for 1888. He does not believe in a third party movement.

He believes that the practical way of increasing the temperance interest at the present time is for each sympathiser in the holy cause to unite with some one of the organized bands. The Good Templar Lodge fills a necessity of our social natures and is an excellent organization, especially for the young.

By reason of temperance agitation, it has come to pass that many men of high moral courage and convictions have been selected to fill municipal offices and have also enforced the existing Sunday laws.

The next attraction was a beautiful vocal solo by Mrs. R. M. Magee. The lady's charming voice never seemed more pleasing than in this selection. She played the accompaniment with exquisite skill.

When Miss Maggie Teats again appeared her pretty white attire had been substituted by one nearer like that which a maiden just fresh from "Erin's green Isle" might be supposed to wear. She was accompanied by Miss Lizzie Hughes to whom she delivered a lecture on the sentiments of an Irish girl's heart at her strange experience in this country. She speaks in a rich Irish brogue, and her manner is wonderfully natural. Her laughable error when her mistress called for a "cricket" and told her to cook the chicken in the "spider" were irresistibly comical.

Miss Lizzie Hughes then rendered a spirited piano solo. She manipulates the keys with a skill which shows the result of careful training and arduous practice.

Miss Sadie Bayard's fresh young voice was heard in a plaintiff song about the drunkard's child. It was touching in sentiment. Mrs. Magee was the accompanist.

The good of the order was subserved by Dr. Dorworth in remarks which related to the history of Good Templary. It is 36 years old, had its origin in New York State and now includes a membership of many thousand. The Bellefonte Lodge is in better condition than at any previous time.

A quartette consisting of Misses Mulhulian and Haupt, and Messrs. Schaeffer and Shuey, with Miss Shrom at the piano, sang very pleasingly and the audience was dismissed with thanks and the benediction.

—Spring Mills has a creamery. Howard endeavored to start one, but the effort was not successful. Now, Lemont is to have one. Why should not Bellefonte be the location of a creamery? The Spring Mills creamery is the most remunerative institution to the farmers that locality ever had. All their receipts from the sale of milk are cash, at regular market price. One thousand pounds of butter is made daily and it sells at 50 per cent. more than ordinary butter. The factory is operated at its fullest capacity and cannot supply the demand. Bellefonte is the best location in the county for a creamery. It is better supplied with railroad facilities than any other. Short lines are as useful as long ones for the purpose of daily collections of supplies of milk. The grazing and agricultural country is excellent. The Bellefonte factory should manufacture 3,000 pounds daily. It don't require much capital. From $5,000 to $6,000 will be sufficient.

In the Council.

Mr. Chas. Cook acted as clerk for the borough council on Monday evening. Adjt. Gen. Hastings appeared in behalf of his Linn street neighbors to ask the council to enforce the ordinance relative to laying sidewalks along the south side of East Linn street, as far as A. J. Cruse's residence. The petition which he presented was numerously signed. The Street committee was ordered to proceed according to ordinance.

Then came a petition from the people of Pike street, or alley, asking for water. This request is to be investigated.

The Water committee reported that the ditches for the extension of water pipe out Willow Bank street and along Reynolds avenue are partially completed.

The Street committee has been very busy cleaning the streets and the commissioners are carting the dirt away.

The street committee and borough engineer reported many walks and gutters which should be repaired.

The bridge near Reynolds mill is in a bad condition and the committee was ordered to have it temporarily repaired.

The sum of $5.50 has accrued from market fees.

The Fire and Police committee stated that the repairs to the hook and ladder house are about completed. The foundation of the Logan hose house is finished and the carpenters are about to begin their part of the work.

After considerable talk and the adoption of one or two resolutions in regard to the new water extension, council adjourned.

An Unfortunate Accident.

Mr. Stewart Pierce was the victim of a very unfortunate and painful accident on Saturday morning in Williamsport. He was employed in the Basin yard of the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad in that city. The Gazette and Bulletin says that while Stewart was assisting in making up a train of lumber cars his foot became fast in the guard rail near a switch. A long train was backing rapidly towards him, and before it could be stopped the cars were upon him. The unfortunate man leaned away from the track, the wheels striking his foot and pushing it along between the rails for some distance, lacerating it in a terrible manner. He was conveyed to his home and medical aid summoned. At last accounts it was stated that the physicians had hopes of saving the foot. Pearce had been employed in the yard only two days before meeting with his misfortune. He was brought to Bellefonte on Monday afternoon. His wife and child are now at the home of Mrs. Pearce's father, Mr. Daniel McGinley on Lamb street, where the injured man was conveyed. We are very sorry to learn of his misfortune and trust that the injuries may be less serious than is indicated by the above.

Horrible Crimes.

More than the usual number of murders and attempts at murder occurred throughout the country on Monday. In Pittsburg a man named Frederick Herman, pounded his wife on the head, injuring her terribly, cut the throat of his child and then cut himself so severely with a razor that he will probably die. Joseph Harrison, who lived near Mercer, Pa., seriously wounded his brother-in law, Thomas McKay, with a revolver, and then killed himself. Fred Bauer of Cincinnati, after inflicting a dangerous wound on Pauline Bogenschener and a slight one on Mrs. Zell, shot and killed himself. Near Huron, Dakota, Simon Nelson shot to death Mrs. Shaw, her son, and her sister, Miss Lyman, fatally wounded Mr. Kelsey and then killed himself. Martin Culner, a patient in a Chicago insane asylum, died from the effects of a blow inflicted by S V. Teenison, who was also a patient. After John H. Fields, of Helena, Ky., had seriously wounded his wife and two sons, he treated himself to a similar dose. At Danville, Va, M. B. Farley shot and killed George W. Garner. It is unnecessary to give the sickening details of these crimes.

—The Republicans of the West ward should be informed that Mr. Seibert, who was elected to represent that ward in the school board, did not move from the ward and thus relinquish his place in the board through any careless motive or from a mere desire to change his residence. He very highly appreciates the honor of election and it is a real disappointment to him not to be able to serve.

—Probably gentlemen waiters will serve at the Y. M. C. A. festival on Friday and Saturday evenings.

AGRICULTURE IN JUNE.

THE STATE BOARD MEETS IN OUR BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAIN TOWN.

Among the gentlemen and ladies who have been attracted to our town by the meeting of the State Board of Agriculture are: H. H. Calvin, of Dauphin, Pa., John P. Edge, of Downingtown; Chandler Eves, of Millville; John Hoffer, of Milton; R. P. Searle, of Montrose; L. P. Scott, of Towanda; William Gates, of Oil City; A. J. Kahler, Hughesville; Abner Fague, Picture Rocks, Lyman B Speaker, Hills Grove; J. A. Herr, Cedar Springs; William S. Roland and wife, of York; John W. Heckman and wife, of Chester county; C. C. Musselman, of Somerset; Henry Hoffman, of Philadelphia; Col. H. C. Demlin of Harrisburg. (The Colonel is a member of Governor Beaver's military staff); H. M. Engle, Marietta; Thomas Edge, the secretary of the society, who is accompanied by his wife. Their home is in Marietta. W. C. Blackford, son and daughter, of Bucks county; W. Kenderline and wife and E. Reeder and wife, of Bucks county. All the above are at the Brockerhoff House.

At the Bush House are registered Israel Garretson, of Biglerville; H. W. Kraty, of Trappe; Jacob Z. Zerr, Reading; J. A. Grundy and son, of Lewisburg; John Preston, of Grand Rapids, Mich., W. F. Underwood, William Frear and W. A. Buckhout, of State College, and Thomas L. Clapp, of Milton.

Among the later arrivals by the morning trains were H. C. Warfel, of Pittsburg; J. W. Mather, of Wellsboro; J. H. Long, of Flemington; and John B. Smith, and daughter, of Kingston.

THE EXERCISES WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The members of the Board assembled in the Court House at 9.30 o'clock. Most of them, including a few ladies who are delegates, occupied seats inside the bar. The attendance of Centre county farmers was not large. Among them were Captain Austin Curtin and Leonard Rhone. The convention was opened in the usual manner, Judge A. O. Furst delivering the address of welcome, which was a very happy and eloquent effort. It was responded to in very appropriate manner. Dr. John P. Edge, of Chester county, is the presiding officer.

The first subject, "How to build and maintain public roads," drew out a general discussion, Prof. Hamilton being among those who took part in it most prominently. When Dr. Edge's subject, "An Inquiry into the results of the artificial propagation of food fishes in Chester county," was announced, that gentleman yielded the chair to another member of the Board.

The other papers read were one bearing the title "Some Suggestions on Forestry," by Prof. W. A. Buckhout, entomologist of the board, which was of course of great value, and one entitled "Farming in Centre County," by Clement Dale, Esq. The latter was a valuable contribution to the local information of such engrossing interest to agriculturists.

Organize at Once.

The Board of Trade which once existed in this place died for want of breath. It might have been a good board of trade while it lived, it certainly had some very choice material in it. There, for instance, was the present Governor of the State. But his removal and the death of one or two very energetic gentlemen had the effect of completely prostrating that useful organization.

This is the Spring-time. Everything reminds us that old and apparently dead things can receive new life. Why not revivify the board of trade? We suggest, in another article, great business opportunities. With a lively board of trade to contemplate and plan investments, and perhaps attract outside capital the work can be done much easier. There are many bright young business men in our town who could organize a fine board of trade. They are the ones to do it. The young men can more surely make it successful. Once organized, they can embrace every opportunity to make Bellefonte's many business advantages known to the world, and attract capital here. Why not call a meeting now? There is no time better than the present.

—Two or three men and a woman, natives of Sunny Italy, were in Bellefonte on Monday evening, rendering music, the men performing on instruments and the woman singing. We did not hear them, but the music is described to us as but ordinary. The vocal selections were in Italian, hence not very entertaining so far as the words were concerned, most of the audience being somewhat deficient in their knowledge of that musical language.

—The Methodists are going to hold a sociable this (Thursday) evening beginning at 6 o'clock. It will be in their Sunday-school room. The refreshments will include ice cream, strawberries and cream, strawberry shortcake, water ice and cakes of various kinds. This bill-of-fare is unusually tempting and the affair will doubtless be not only enjoyable, but also a great financial success.

—We are gratified to learn that the injuries sustained by Mr. Stewart Pearce at Williamsport are not as serious as was at first feared. No bones are broken in his foot and no doubts are entertained that he will recover the full use of it, though a month's time must elapse while the healing process is taking place.

When Mr. John Rankin, formerly a clerk in the National Bank here, went to California, he entered a bank. His medical adviser, however, told him that out-door work would be better for his health, consequently he has purchased some land and a team of horses, severed his connection with the bank and will engage in out-door employment.

—We are informed by H. H. Harshberger, Esq., that the Children's day exercises of the Methodist Sunday-school will be held next Sunday afternoon at the regular time—2.30 o'clock p. m., in the church.

Millions in It.

HOW THE WEALTH OF THIS COMMUNITY CAN BE MULTIPLED.

There are many excellent business opportunities in Bellefonte which we regret to see slip from the grasp of the energetic young men of our town. With but the investment of a little money and skill large fortunes may be made here. There is no place on the globe favored to a greater extent.

Iron ore is not considered a very valuable commodity. It is sold by the ton not by the pound, and it is carried around in a careless way as if not much more precious than stones or dirt. It is the raw material and it is only by working it into a refined shape that it becomes of much value. Then an article weighing not more than two pounds becomes worth as much as a ton of ore. Its value is enhanced 1,000 times. It is the work, the changes of form and the skill applied to the raw material which causes this greatly enhanced value.

The change, skill and labor can most advantageously be made where the raw material is found. To carry the comparatively valueless raw material a great distance involves large expense, and adds to the cost of producing the refined product. Every consideration of economy and wisdom suggests that the cost of freight be saved until the article be increased in value. As it is, the iron ore from this county has been converted into springs away up in Boston, and then the springs were sent to Bellefonte hardware stores to be purchased perhaps by the gentleman who owned the ore mine. The work change and skill add to the importance and wealth of the community in which they occur. They bring an intelligent, thrifty population to the community and the sale of the product adds great wealth. To effect these changes and do this work requires an investment of some capital, but not more than the energetic young men in this town can command.

Go to the hardware stores and see the numerous valuable articles which can be manufactured here from the county's native product. Consider the folly of sending the product away and then repurchasing it when its value is multiplied a thousand fold. Contemptate the wealth that would have flowed into Bellefonte if all the ore that has been taken away had undergone this transformation. After you have done this blame yourself for monstrous shortsightedness, but resolve not to repeat the effense.

—Messrs. Francis Speer and Ed. Rankin were interested observers on Saturday evening of the large trout in aquaium of F. Potts Green's drug store. Suddenly the fish, some of which are almost as big as very small whale, began to plunge and throw the water in all directions, probably in attestation of their very great pleasure in being critically surveyed by a gentleman wearing such a handsome high silk hat. But the aforesaid hat was the chief sufferer. It was covered with water and Francis thinks that hereafter when he admires young whales he will stand at a greater distance—that distance, you know, which lends enchantment to the view.

—The rush of people to explore the intricacies and beauties of the famous Penn Cave increases as its celebrity becomes more extended. Great as is its reputation, surprise and wonder at its magnitude and beauty is expressed by all who see it. Mr. Long, who owns it and acts as guide, is exceedingly obliging in making the exploration agreeable to all who visit the cave. During last year there were 6,000 visitors, and the number will be surpassed this year.

—On Sunday morning, after the close of the usual service three persons were ordained elders in the Presbyterian church. Rev Dr. Laurie read many quotations from the Scripture bearing on the subject, showing that the office is of Divine appointment. Governor Jas. A. Beaver, Judge A. O. Furst, Messrs. E. C. Humes and James Harris assisted in the service, and the gentlemen ordained are Messrs. George Potter, J. Cal. Weaver and Samuel Schaeffer.

A CHALLENGE.

BELLEFONTE, June 6, 1887.

MR. EDITOR OF NEWS: Please allow me space in your paper to inform the Muckamullions that the Bellefonte club challenges them for a game on the 11th of June, for money or for fun.

CHARLES CRIDER.
